CITY TRUSTEES

Permits Granted for Street Improvement—Annexation Election Returns Canvassed

It was the night of election day. The weather without was falling in small damp driblets. Within, there was an atmosphere of expectancy surcharged with possibilities. The chairman and Trustee Coker, the holdover members, wore their "serene, indifferent of fate" expression; and a similarity of demeanor was noticeable in Trustee Williams, who, having achieved the proud distinction of retiring voluntarily from the fierce light that beats upon a public official, had really good reason for his serenity, for in private life there is not even the fear of a recall. Trustees Lane and Watson appeared just as public officers naturally and properly appear when they don't know where they are "at," but are liable to hear at any moment. City Clerk Woodberry also wore the aspect of expectancy that enveloped his fellow expecters. There was an assemblage of citizens in the room outside the sacred pale(ing) to the number of five who distributed the parsimonious supply of four chairs among them. Routine business occupied the attention of the board for awhile. The supply committee asked for an explanation from the city engineer as to a bill from Carney for rain coats, boots, etc., which was promptly and satisfactorily given. A petition was received for the improvement of a portion of Raleigh street; same was granted, grade to be established by the city engineer. A petition was received from F. R. Sinclair for permission to improve by grading and putting in curb and sidewalk portions of Jackson, Isabel, Howard and Doran streets in the Livingston tract on the north city limits. Referred to city engineer.

The board took up the official count of the late annexation election, the result being expressed in a resolution offered by Mr. Lane and adopted showing the toal number of votes cast within the city being 297 of which 268 were for and 29 against; in outside territory a total of 156, of which 86 were in favor of and 70 against. A motion was also adopted directing the clerk to send a report of the result of the election to the secretary of state. About 9 o'clock reports came in from precincts one and three, the complexion of which caused about forty per cent of the gloom to fall from the faces of Trustees Watson and Lane.

An ordinance granting to E. D. Coots a franchise over Fourth street to west city limits for 41 years was read first and second times and laid over. About this time the final election returns came in and simultaneously the remaining 60 per cent of the gloom fell from the faces of Messrs. Lane and Watson.

The matter of paying for a Glendale advertisement in the magazine published by McClure and Stamats was discussed at some length, it finally being agreed to pay $50 for the advertising and to take 300 copies at 15 cents a copy. The board adjourned to meet Tuesday evening to consider bids on electric light supplies for the extension of the system on the west side.

At adjourned meeting Tuesday evening, the trustees opened the bids for supplying the lighting department with material for the West Side extension There were about twenty-six bids accompanied by checks, and all were referred to the manager of the light department to be taken up at the regular meeting Monday nert.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES ELECTED.

Results in Election for High and Grammar Schools.

Friday, high school and grammar school trustees were elected in Glendale. The following is the total vote cast:

	Prec. 1.	Prec. 2.	Prec. 3.
Heacock	93	258	209
Witham	22	96	193
Westlake	22	219	144
Hellyer	75	90	184
Elliott	24	43	71
Sternberg	46	247	215
Croswell	73	104	177

Heacock totaled 560 votes, Sternberg 508 votes, and Westlake 385—these three being those elected for. Heacock three-year term, Westlake two-year term, and Sternberg one-year term.

In the high school election, Messrs. Dwight Griswold of Tropico, Charles Young of Eagle Rock and Dr. A. L. Bryant of Glendale were elected. There was some opposition in Tropico to Dwight Griswold, and he lost in that district to Mrs. Winterburn, but the vote was not large enough to offset the votes cast in Glendale and Eagle Rock.

THE MOUNT VERDUGO RAILWAY.

The NEWS article last week in reference to this project being promoted by Capt. Phillips mentioned the fact that this gentleman represented an inventor who had a new device for an inclined railway. It is learned since that the inventor is Col. Lewis Ginger of Adams street, formerly a prominent citizen of Colorado. The principal feature of the device is the mechanical arrangement which permits the running of an ordinary car up the incline without any change and without cumbersome hoisting apparatus It is understood that Col. Ginger is to present his project to the Chamber of Commerce at its meeting this (Friday) evening.

The following are among the building permits issued since April 1st: L A. Hobbs, Sycamore and Central, dwelling, $1800; C. W. Spickerman, Hawthorne between Central and Columbus, dwelling, $1200; Viola B. Wright, 235 Louise street, dwelling, $2000; P. N. Portman, 1418 Oak street, dwelling, $1500.

BIG FRATERNAL BROTHERHOOD MEETING.

One of the largest and most successful lodge entertainments ever held in Glendale was that of last Friday evening by the Fraternal Brotherhood at their lodge room in K. of P. hall. The entertainment was given by the local lodge and was for members of the order only. There were present representatives from Los Angeles, Tropico, Hollywood, Eagle Rock, Santa Monica and other places outside of Glendale, in addition to local members. There were nearly three hundred present in the hall and about 250 sat down to the banquet that followed the proceedings in the lodge room. The Santa Monica lodge and drill team conducted the initiation proceedings, a class of fifteen being put through according to the long form which had not previously been given in Glendale, and was very impressive. The work of the visiting lodge was excellent. Mr. Alex Mitchell as presiding officer, acted as toast master and kept things going in his own inimitable style. There were speeches by several visiting members and also by members of the home lodge. The principal address being by Mrs. Emma Neidig, supreme vice president of the order. One of the happy features of the evening's program was the presentation by the lodge of a fine jewel to Mr. J. D. Jones, the organizer, who during the past few months has more than doubled the membership of the lodge, Mr. Jones being about to leave for Orange county where he will have charge of the work of the order. About eleven o'clock the crowd adjourned to the banquet hall, next Woods hotel, where three long tables, beautifully decorated were laden with a bountiful spread which met the fate of such things generally.

WEATHER.

Rain began falling Monday afternoon, and up to Thursday morning still continues in occasional heavy showers. Up to Tuesday morning, by the gauge of Mr. Bartlett on Brand boulevard, the measurement was one inch. During Wednesday and until Thursday morning an inch and two one-hundredths was added, making the total for the storm 2.02 inches, and for the season 12.32. Such a heavy rainfall in April is very unusual, and as but little of it has run off, it has been of immense benefit.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. will be held on Friday, April 19th, at 2:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. A. R. Knight, 216 East First street. Mrs. Ruby Smart will have charge of the program, and will talk on parliamentary rules.

The pastor will preach at 11 a. m., a prelude on the late city election. "Isaiah's Jerusalem Home; the Decadent City America's Peril," is the Epworth League subject. Roy Martin, leader, at 6 p. m.

No evening service in this church.

Prayer and praise service in the big tent Wednesday evening. Farrar will be present and lead the singing. He will meet the chorus choir at the conclusion of the service. Evangelist Handenschield will be present Thursday evening.

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL.

K. of P. hall, Brand boulevard near Third street. Sunday school, 10:00 o'clock and morning worship with sermon at 11:00 o'clock. The pastor is preaching a series of sermons on "The greatest sayings of the greatest Man."

A large audience attended Easter musical service. At the morning service the Lord's supper was observed and the right hand of fellowship was extended to eight persons. Several new congregational families are attending the services.

The Woman's Auxiliary met with Mrs. S. A. Merriken, 1529 Ivy street, Thursday. The pastor had the privilege of speaking to a large and appreciative audience at the Christian church Sunday evening.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

(Dedication Day.)

Sunday school, 9:45; morning worship, 11 o'clock; address by John Willis Baer of Occidental college; dedication service, 3 p. m.; sermon to be preached by Rev. W. B. Gantz, pastor of Highland Park Presbyterian church. Everybody invited. Evening service, 7:30, will be a union meeting, Dr. R. A. Torrey of the Bible Institute will preach. Special music at all services.

Monday evening, April 15, 7:30, the new pastor, Rev. Walter E. Edmonds, will be formally installed in accordance with plan of Los Angeles Presbytery. Rev. C. B. Hatch, pastor of Presbyterian church, Tropico, has been appointed moderator. Rev. L. C. Kirkes, pastor Boyle Heights Presbyterian church, will preach the sermon. Rev. A. B. Pritchard will give the charge to the people. Rev. W. S. Young, stated clerk of Los Angeles Presbytery, will give the charge to the pastor. The general public is invited.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The attendance at the Sunday school and services last Sunday was beyond the seating capacity of the building many being obliged to stand. The exercises of the Sunday school and singing of the young ladies' chorus were excellent. The music of the regular quartet was as usual the very best. After a short sermon by the pastor on the subject, "The Resurrection Symbol," four were baptized. At the communion service which followed the pastor gave the right hand of fellowship to nine new members.

The corner stone of the new Sunday school house will be laid with interesting and impressive ceremonies next Saturday at 2:30 p. m. The committee on corner stone laying consists of Messrs. Longley, Martin, Stouch, Taylor and Middleworth. They have secured Rev. W. Leon Tucker of Los Angeles to make the address. The stone, a granite block, will bear in its face the date "1912" and will hold a metal box containing a brief history of the church, its constitution, names of the members, and other important documents. The public is cordially invited.

The regular services of the church will be held next Sunday as usual with a sermon by the pastor in the morning. The evening preaching service will be omitted for the union evangelistic service to be held in the Presbyterian church in connection with their day of dedication.

This church is looking forward with interest and great anticipation to the union evangelistic campaigns to begin here under the leadership of Handenschield and Farrer, April 17th.

SHOT GUN CLUB.

The regular shoot of the Glendale Valley Shot Gun Club was held Sunday, April 7. The medal contest was closely contested. Kenton Robertshaw, F. H. Mellus and F. W. Kinney each broke 20 out of a possible 25. In shooting off the tie Mr. Kinney won on the 5th round. The score for the day's shoot was: F. H. Kinney, 20; C. K. Robertshaw, 20; F. H. Mellus, 20; Hugh Cornwell, 16; Allen Bullis, 17; Ed Karri, 15; H. Robertshaw, 14; Gillette, 13; W. Benson, 14; Bull, 18; L. Andrews, 19; McClellan, 19; L. Karri, 19; D. Mills, 9; C. H. Boyd, 11; R. Henry, 11; L. Mae, 10; W. Tupper, 14; Ed Kenser, 8; L. Griffith, 8.

CITY ELECTION

Over 1300 Votes Polled—Lane, Tower and Watson Winners—Also Woodberry and Hoffman—The Vote by Precincts

To say that the election of last Monday for city officers was a lively one, or to compare it with former contests occurring here, would be misleading. There was never another like it in Glendale, and in some respects it will never be imitated. The utter futility of trying to make the people support a ticket prepared by self-appointed committees was demonstrated, as no one of the three tickets in the field was successful, the voters picking out individual candiates at their own will. One thing making the contest unique was the participation of the newly enfranchised voters of the feminine persuasion, and they certainly had a weighty influence in determining the result. They stood at the polls all day, regardless of the rain of the afternoon, which never dampened their ardor, and their Easter bonnets had been left at home, having done full service the day before. The W. C. T. U. and the Socialists had full representation among the workers, but there were others as well. The campaign had not in all cases been carried on along lines of fairness, and personalities were indulged in to an extent unparliamentary at least, and so there were many wordy contests at the polling places, which ended in nothing worse than a sense of injury which will probably rankle for some time in the minds of a few who lacked experience in the political game, but which seasoned warriors forget with the passing of the day. It became evident early in the day that the action of the churches in supporting the candidacy of the three trustees who were finally successful was going to be a powerful factor in determining the result, and this was demonstrated more and more as the day went by. There were really few surprises to those best posted. The votes showed a desire on the part of the majority of the voters to give the section west of Brand boulevard a representative, but the chances of either Mr. Howard or Mr. Wells of being successful were made very slim by a division of the west side votes. As predicted by the NEWS last week, Messrs. Watson and Woodberry were easy winners, and of course Mr. Hoffman had a walk-over. Mr. Lane had a hard fight on his hands, but came out a good winner in the end. Mr. Hinckley, the eleventh-hour candidate of the Socialists, probably polled about the full vote of his party. There were over 1,300 votes cast, and the count was completed about 10 o'clock. The following is the vote by precincts:

PRECINCT NO. 1—NORTHEAST SECTION OF CITY.

Trustees—Anderson, 29; Howard, 33; Lane, 106; Lawson, 105; Showalter, 106; Tower, 146; Watson, 224; Wells, 78; Hinckley, 36.
City Clerk—Whaley, 26; Woodberry, 257.
Treasurer—G B. Hoffman, 269; F. L. Church, 1.

PRECINCT NO. 2—NORTHWEST SECTION.

Trustees—Anderson, 28; Howard, 93; Lane, 124; Lawson, 77; Showalter, 52; Tower, 95; Watson, 128; Wells, 54; Hinckley, 27.
City Clerk—Whaley, 83; Woodberry, 135.
Treasurer—G. B. Hoffman, 199.

PRECINCT NO. 3—SOUTHWEST SECTION.

Trustees—Anderson, 24; Howard, 164; Lane, 178; Lawson, 125; Showalter, 82; Tower, 161; Watson, 187; Wells, 133; Hinckley, 88.
City Clerk—Whaley, 126; Woodberry, 246.
Treasurer—Hoffman, 336.

PRECINCT NO. 4—SOUTHEAST SECTION.

Trustees—Anderson, 36; Howard, 40; Lane, 100; Lawson, 74; Showalter, 89; Tower, 159; Watson, 223; Wells, 79; Hinckley, 54.
City Clerk—Whaley, 48; Woodberry, 241.
Treasurer—Hoffman, 274; Sidney Dell, 1.

The advisory vote on the pool room question was determined adversely by a vote of 793 to 333.

ALPHONSO W. TOWER.

Glendale's new member of the Board of Trustees came from Illinois to California in 1903, and to Glendale in 1905, where for two years he was vice-principal of the High School. For the past two years he has been teaching in the Polytechnic High School in Los Angeles. Mr. Tower is secretary of the Glendale Masonic Lodge, and has a large number of friends in social circles. He has a pleasant home on Damasco Court and Ninth street.

TAFT'S RECORD AGAINST TRUSTS

Sherman Law Enforced Without Fear or Favor.

EXCELS HIS PREDECESSORS.

Both in Civil and Criminal Prosecution Taft Administration Breaks All Records—Legal Accomplishments of Five Presidents Compared.

TAFT'S ANTI-TRUST RECORD.

Under the last five administrations prosecutions under the Sherman anti-trust law have been brought as follows:

	Civil suits.	Criminal suits.	Total.
Under Harrison (three years)....	4	3	7
Under Cleveland (four years).....	5	2	7
Under McKinley (four and one-years).....	Three bills in equity.
Under Roosevelt (seven and one-half years).....	18	25	44*
Under Taft (two years and eleven months)..	22	40	62

*One property seizure.

The ratio of prosecutions, allowing for length of time in office, of the Taft administration as compared with the records of its four immediate predecessors is approximately as follows:

Taft over Harrison..... 9 to 1
Taft over Cleveland..... 12 to 1
Taft over McKinley..... 30 to 1
Taft over Roosevelt..... 4 to 1

President Taft's administration has broken all records for prosecutions brought and won under the Sherman anti-trust law. Without fear or favor it has brought to the bar of justice corporations and persons engaging in illegal combinations in restraint of trade, the ultimate purpose of each combination being to create a monopoly and to raise the prices on its products. In two years and eleven months of his administration President Taft has caused to be brought four more civil suits and fifteen more criminal prosecutions than Mr. Roosevelt brought in the seven and one-half years of his administration.

Until Mr. Taft became the president the administration of Mr. Roosevelt held the record in both particulars. Thus has President Taft, who was Mr Roosevelt's right arm during his last administration, kept his pledge to the American people to uphold and maintain the policies of his predecessors in punishing the criminals and undesirable element in the big business of the country.

In the Republican national platform of 1908 reference was made to the prosecution of evil trusts and monopolies as one of the great accomplishments of the Roosevelt administration, and the platform declared that the Sherman anti-trust law had been a wholesome instrument for good in the hands of a wise and fearless executive. In his speech of acceptance Mr. Taft pledged himself to the enforcement of this law and has kept his promise.

Problems Confronting Taft.

Stripped of controversy as to the exact meaning of certain language of the Sherman anti-trust act, the questions that had to be determined by those in administrative authority and those who judicially determine their acts were, first, how effective the law was to reach the great aggregations of formerly competitive producers and dealers, individual and corporate, who, through intercorporate stockholding mergers, consolidations and otherwise, had acquired so great a control over a particular line of industry as to enable them to dominate it and to exclude or admit competition as they might choose upon their own terms.

Secondly, to determine whether that construction of the law was correct which had been given to it by some of the judges of the circuit court in New York in the tobacco case and in the opinions of some of the justices of the supreme court in other cases to the effect that any combination which in any respect operated to restrain to any degree a pre-existing competition in interstate commerce was necessarily condemned by law.

In the three years of the Taft administration all of the sixteen cases left pending by the previous administration have been disposed of except two, which have been argued and submitted to the supreme court of the United States and are now awaiting decision. Of the remaining cases the Standard Oil case was argued early during the present administration and, after an appeal, decided entirely in favor of the government. The same was also true of the tobacco cases, with the ultimate result of the disintegration of that big trust into fourteen separate and distinct corporations. This, it is believed, will effectively prevent a continuance of the monopolistic conditions complained of Taft Anti-trust Record.

During the Taft administration up to February, 1912, twenty-two civil suits have been brought and forty criminal indictments found under the Sherman law, making in all sixty-two proceedings. As a result there were fifteen indictments, and eleven of these involved eighty or more defendants. Eight out of twelve defendants were convicted on one indictment after trial by jury and their conviction confirmed by the court of appeals, and thirteen criminal prosecutions are pending.

A brief review of the cases brought under the anti-trust law during the administration demonstrates clearly its value to the American people in their protection of that equality of opportunity which is declared by the platform of the Republican party to be the right of every citizen.

Reference to a few of the anti-trust cases brought by the Taft administration gives an excellent idea of the hardships some of these illegal combinations entail upon consumers. In the prosecution of a case against a number of individuals who attempted to corner all the free cotton remaining of the crop of 1903 it resulted in a raise in the price of that commodity to the spinners, prevented some from making any purchases and was therefore restraining interstate commerce.

In like manner the government took cognizance of the pooling in the wire industry, with the result that nine indictments were found in New York against eighty-three persons engaged in that business. It was an illegal restraint of trade, and when the court proceedings had been finished the various defendants were fined in amounts averaging $1,000 each, with the exception of the supervisor of the pool, who was fined $45,000.

One of the most outrageous cases of combination in restraint of trade and a notable violation of the Sherman law was that of the hand blown window glass industry. Practically all of the manufacturers (eighty-three in number) formed a company which controlled the entire output of hand blown glass. As a result the price was advanced 100 per cent within less than a year. The indictment of the men responsible, the imposition of fines and the restoration of the business upon its former lines were followed by a substantial reduction in the price of hand blown glass.

The federal government is prosecuting suits against the beef trust and the lumber trust with every promise of victory.

No Brass Band.

Brass bands and megaphones have not been needed to herald the accomplishments of the administration of President Taft. All of the great achievements for which the president is directly responsible have been accomplished quietly and without the slightest semblance of noise or bluster. The voters of the country displayed their faith in President Taft and his policies in 1908, and they are prepared to renominate and re-elect him.

Promise and Performance

What the Republican Platform of 1908 Pledged.	And What President Taft and His Party Have Performed.
PROMISE.	PERFORMANCE.
Tariff revision along protective lines, with a maximum and minimum provision.	Payne bill, reduction downward, tariff board, maximum and minimum, veto of bills which violated principle of protection.
Free interchange of products with Philippines.	Embodied in Payne tariff act.
Development of permanent currency system.	Report of currency commission submitted and pending.
Establishment of postal savings banks.	Postal banks in operation. Millions already deposited.
To increase power of government to control trusts and secure greater publicity of corporation methods.	Federal incorporation act recommended, anti-trust law strictly enforced, corporation excise tax, providing for publicity imposed by Payne tariff act.
National supervision of railroad stocks and bond issues.	Stocks and bonds commission created, exhaustive report on subject submitted.
Enactment of employers' liability law and other laws further advancing interests of American workingmen.	Employers' act submitted, law limiting hours of employment enforced, compulsory compensation act pending, bureau of mines established.
To define authority of courts with regard to writ of injunction and uphold integrity of courts.	Measure based on president's recommendation pending, Arizona recall provision vetoed.
Extension of rural free delivery.	Rural free delivery extended.
More federal aid in agricultural experiments.	Operations of agricultural department vastly enlarged.
Enforcement of fourteenth, fifteenth and sixteenth amendments to the constitution.	Strictly enforced. Sixteenth adopted by congress, submitting income tax amendment to the states.
Conservation of natural resources and improvement of waterways.	Bond issue for irrigation projects, "pork barrel" method of river and harbor appropriations abolished, comprehensive conservation policy adopted.
To maintain and promote American army and navy.	Army reorganized, maneuvers that gave it mobility, two battleship program submitted.
Expansion of foreign commerce.	China opened to American finance, increased commerce with all the world.
Liberal pensions for war veterans.	Pension roll liberally maintained.
Protection of American citizens abroad.	Russian treaty abrogated because of discrimination against American citizens.
Obedience to and maintenance of civil service laws.	Laws obeyed to the letter and enforced, extensions put in effect and others recommended.
Greater efficiency in public health agencies.	Bureau of health recommended, pure food laws enforced.
Statehood for New Mexico and Arizona.	New Mexico and Arizona admitted.
Extension of principle of arbitration.	Arbitration treaties with Great Britain and France negotiated, ratified with amendments.
Citizenship for Porto Ricans.	Measure pending.

Deserves Another Term.

Representative J. Hampton Moore, who is well known in many different sections of the country on account of his active interest in waterway improvements, in discussing the administration of President Taft has this to say:

"President Taft ought to be renominated and elected because he stands for stability. He should be nominated because it has been generally conceded by Republicans since the first day he entered the office that the same treatment would be accorded him with respect to a second term that is usually accorded to Republican presidents who have done well. There is no good party excuse for not nominating him. He should be elected because, while not a political president in the sense that he has played politics to the satisfaction of all elements of his party, he has in fact been a broad gauge president, conservative in all matters affecting the dignity of the office and the obligations assumed by him to sustain and uphold the constitution and the laws of this country."

Taft's Efforts For Peace.

Honesty of intention, stability of purpose and a firm faith in the principles of the party of Lincoln, Grant and McKinley are some of the characteristics of President Taft. Familiar with the horrors of war, as well as the enormous expense that it always entails, independent of the vast expenditures required to keep a great nation upon a constant war footing, the president has persistently sought to promote a worldwide peace of nations by international agreement. Any failure of accomplishment in furthering this worthy cause cannot be charged to the president.

DELEGATES FOR TAFT.

On Saturday, March 23, 1912, the number of delegates elected to the Republican national convention pledged to President Taft were as follows:

Literature and Slang.

"Booze," as a word connected with taking strong waters, dates back two centuries, and in the spelling "bouze" may be found at even as remote a date as 1300. "Freshi" in its signification of forward, comes from 1803. "Some pumpkins," popular slang in bucolic circles, is of ancient lineage. "Gab" has been slang for a century. "Stag," on the fence between slang and English, has survived generations. In the Knickerbocker Magazine of 1856 we find an author telling of "a party of old bricks who * * * are keeping up a small stag party at the end of the room." "Squelch" in the seventeenth century was in good use. Of two words in vogue to express drunkenness half a century ago "tight" is much alive, while "whittled" has been dropped. There are no fixed laws to gauge the life of slang or to predict its entrance into the language. Will "highbrow," for example, find its way into the mouths of grandchildren yet unborn, or will it take its place in the ranks of absolute curiosities?—Collier's Weekly.

Wreck of the White Ship.

The most famous of all royal shipwrecks is probably that of the White Ship, which gave Rossetti the subject of one of his finest ballads. Henry I. had crossed to France to secure the allegiance of the Norman barons and was returning in triumph. Prince William the king's favorite son, did not sail aboard his father's vessel, but followed in the White Ship, commanded by Fitz-Stephen, the royal hereditary pilot. Somewhere in midchannel the White Ship separated from the fleet and went down with all on board, and Henry "never smiled again."

That historically stifled smile also gave rise to the ribald verse—it came, one thinks, from some Twainish American:

Many a wicked smile he smole,
And many a wink he wunk,
But never, never smole again
After the White Ship sunk.
—London Spectator.

Ermine Is the Royal Fur.

The fame of the ermine as a creature "patronized by royalty" dates back to the reign of King Edward III., who made it a punishable offense for any person except those of royal birth to wear the fur of this handsome little animal. This tyrannous restriction has been long removed, but ermine, of course, is still the royal fur and probably owes its long continued popularity as an article of personal adornment more to that fact than anything else. It has, however, the great drawback of losing its pristine whiteness after a few years, while, owing to the variation in the quality of the fur found on different animals of the tribe, ermine is far harder to match than many other skins employed in the making of human apparel.—London Globe.

Wasting Time.

"What!" exclaimed the young man whom we shall call Bill. "You got engaged last night? Why, Archie, my dear old friend, tell me how you ever came to do it!"

"Well, Billie," blushed the fellow we have already named as Archie, "I really hardly know myself. But it was just as easy as falling off a log. I was on the edge of a proposal—she gave me a gentle push—and there I was—engaged!"

"Gee! I never had any such experience. Every time I try to start my knees knock together, my teeth chatter, and my tongue gets stuck in my throat. I've tried a dozen times to propose to Marguerite Dempster, you know, and I get stuck every time."

"And she lets you get stuck?"

"Why, yes."

"Then you're courting the wrong girl."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Married His Grandmother.

There lived in the village of Arreton, Isle of Wight, many years ago a young man who was betrothed to a young woman. Both were poor and in humble life, but the grandfather of the young man had money, and he fell in love with the young woman and proposed marriage to her. The girl told her lover. He was displeased, but, having pondered over the dilemma, saw a way to extricate himself and his sweetheart from the same. "Marry him," said he to the girl. "He is rich. He cannot live long. When he dies you'll have his money and I'll have you." She took the advice. By the marriage she became the young man's grandmother. Not long after the old man died, and then she wedded her first betrothed.

Rather Emphatic.

In a Virginia courthouse a negro was describing how a cutting scrape started.

"Dis here Johnson nigger started toward me," said the witness, "and ez he done so he stuck his hand down in his hip pocket. And I says to him, 'Nigger,' I says, 'whutever you has got your hand on now better be a chicken, 'cause I suttinly is gwine to make you eat it!'"—Saturday Evening Post.

Giant Spider Crab.

The giant Japanese spider crab is the ugliest looking shellfish in the world. Its body measures about one foot across, and the claws have a "spread" now and then of over twelve feet. These spider crabs inhabit the Japan sea and often live 2,000 feet below the surface of the waves.

One Less to Feed.

A lady said of Mrs. Calhoun Clay:

"How can a washerwoman like her afford to dress so well? She didn't use to."

"No, I know she didn't use to," another lady explained, "but, you see, her husband has left her."—Exchange.

Seized His Chance.

The county courthouse was burning, and the judge was very anxious to arrive at the scene of much of his life work as quickly as possible and posthaste sent the negro house boy to saddle Sintram, his horse. The judge's sons, seeing Sintram in process of being saddled, pre-empted the remaining horses and rode off. The little negro considered the matter for a moment and rode Sintram off, thus forcing the judge to take a hurried and, as he considered it, an entirely unnecessary walk of half a mile.

To the surprise and chagrin of the small negro, when the judge caught him he gave him a good thrashing. When one of the young men remarked: "Zack, you should not have ridden father's horse off. You might have known he would have whipped you, and you deserved it."

"I know dat, Mr. Dave," responded Zack, "but I kin git er whippin' mos' any day, an' I never will see de cotehouse burn ag'in."—Los Angeles Times.

Flags at Half Mast.

Did you ever stop to think what connection there could be between a flag that was not properly hoisted and the death of a great man? Ever since flags were used in war it has been the custom to have the flag of the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the flag of the victors to be placed above it on the same pole. This was a token not only of submission, but of respect. In those days when a famous soldier died flags were lowered out of respect to his memory. The custom long ago passed from purely military usage to public life of all kinds, the flag flying at half mast being a sign that the dead man was worthy of universal respect. The space left above it is for the flag of the great conqueror of all, the Angel of Death.—New York Sun.

A Record Hailstorm.

One of the worst hailstorms ever known in the United States occurred Sept. 5, 1898, in Nodaway county, Missouri. The path of the storm was about three miles wide and eighteen miles long, its greatest violence being felt over a region of four square miles east of Clarmont. At one point in this region the fall of hail was so heavy that a drift unprotected by artificial means remained lying on the ground for four weeks after the storm. At the end of that time people in the neighborhood were found gathering the hail for the purpose of making ice cream. During the storm cylindrical pieces of ice were picked up four inches long by about two and a half in diameter. The growing corn was practically all destroyed. In a field of eighty acres only one stalk was left standing.—Chicago News.

GOVERNMENT BY LAW VS. GOVERNMENT BY EXECUTIVE CHOICE.

Our numerous friends who are admirers and supporters of ex-President Roosevelt owe it to themselves to be familiar with his actions both while president and since his return to private life. They will therefore be grateful to us no doubt for giving them some information as to his official record as set forth by Congressman Tawney of Illinois, who during Roosevelt's administration was chairman of the appropriations committee of congress. It should be borne in mind also that as president Mr. Roosevelt had taken an oath to support the constitution and administer the laws.

"Perhaps," said Mr. Tawney, "I can make my meaning clearer by citing a few instances of government by executive choice that occurred during Mr. Roosevelt's second term. When the great union station was built in Washington and the Pennsylvania railroad station, which cost a quarter of a million dollars, became the property of the government, Congress authorized its use by the war department, with the idea of saving thousands of dollars a year previously paid for rented quarters. But before the department could get possession, President Roosevelt for some reason or other, decided not to obey the law. He gave written directions to the army engineer in charge of buildings and grounds in Washington that the big station be wrecked and the material removed. This was done. The government received $1000 for the $250,000 building. That is a sample of government by executive choice.

"Here is another instance. Congress authorized the construction of a new building to house the department of agriculture. The law specifically directed the construction of a single building on a certain site within a fixed limit of cost. The president, however, changed the location of the structure by executive order and, ignoring the law in every particular, directed the erection of two wings of a building which has not been completed to this day. These wings now stand on the mall in the national capital as an unsightly monument to government by executive choice.

"Or again, when President Roosevelt concluded that the orthography of Noah Webster was no longer suited for use in official correspondence or public documents, he issued his well-known 'simplified spelling' order, which remained in force only until his term expired.

"Or, when he concluded that the inscription 'In God We Trust' on the coin of the realm was out of date, he directed its removal, and Congress, taken unawares, was forced to enact special legislation for its restoration.

"Again, when Congress refused to authorize the appointment of commissions for all sorts of purposes on President Roosevelt's recommendation, he created them anyhow, without authority of law. Not being able to obtain appropriations for their maintenance, he, by executive order, deliberately diverted appropriations previously made by Congress. To do this he detailed a large number of department employes to these commissions and paid them from the department of funds in defiance of the law and the will of Congress. And when Congress enacted legislation specifically making illegal such diversion of appropriations and prohibiting government auditors from approving payments of this sort, Mr. Roosevelt, in the presence of 10,000 people in St. Paul, in September 1910, not only criticized the provision of the law and the man who drew it, but made the emphatic declaration that 'had I continued as president of the United States I would not have obeyed the law.'

"These instances are but a few of the many of precisely the same sort that could be cited. They illustrate what I mean when I say that the candidacy of Mr. Roosevelt for a third term and the candidacy of Mr. Taft for the second term afford to the Republicans of this country an opportunity to choose between a government by executive choice and government by law."

IN CALIFORNIA FOUR THOUSAND YEARS AGO.

That villages have clustered about the shores of San Francisco bay for at least four thousand years is declared by the anthropologists of the University of California. To show the ways of life of these pioneer Californians, the university has assembled in the Revolving Exhibit room in the museum of anthropology (at the Affiliated Colleges on Parnassus avenue, San Francisco), a collection of the "Bedrocks of California History." Excavations of shell mounds yielded these antiquities. Shells and bones and kitchen refuse, thrown out by centuries of aboriginal housewives, form the shell mounds, such as that at Emeryville, on the Berkeley shore, which mark the sites of vanished Indian villages. In the university collection are sections of shell mounds, old fireplaces, hut floors, weapons, cooking utensils, and not only the implements but the skulls and skeletons of the townsfolk of a San Francisco which was peopled a thousand years before Rome or Athens had their beginnings. The museum makes no charge for admision.—University Bulletin.

Los Angeles, March 4.—John S. McGroarty made the important announcement early this week of the arrival in California on Saturday of the Princess Lazarovich of Servia, who will play the leading woman's role in The Mission Play at San Gabriel. She will be welcomed to California again by Governor and Mrs. Johnson at Sacramento, and greeted at the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco by Mr. McGroarty, the author. The Native Sons and Daughters will tender their illustrious sister-a splendid reception in honor of her return to California, and she will also be entertained at the University of California and at Stanford University. After a short stay at San Jose, the scene of her girlhood days, she will continue her journey, arriving in Los Angeles Thursday of next week.

Princess Lazarovich is regarded by many of the leading theatrical critics as the greatest living actress. Her histronic triumphs in French and English cities have been splendid and the management of the Mission Play is to be congratulated for securing the services of such a remarkable woman. She is the daughter of Judge Calhoun of Kern county.

THE SUPREME COURT ON OVERDRAFTS.

The Supreme Court of the United States has recently given a decision to the effect that an overdraft is a practical misapplication of the funds of the bank, and a connivance at a withdrawal of the same without any security in favor of privileged persons, further that when allowed by the cashier it is done at his own peril.

Thumb Prints.

In the Argentine Republic the identification cards of policemen, coachmen, cab drivers, commissionaires and servants have since 1896 borne their finger prints. Upon all passports and bank receipts for deposits the imprint of the thumb must be made at the time of delivery. In Roumania since 1903 the thumb print has been substituted for the cross made instead of signature by persons who cannot write. In the Philippine Islands those who cannot write are not obliged to be identified by witnesses at savings banks, but have to make their mark with their thumb. The same system has been used in the banks of Bengal for fifty years. In France to put an end to the fraud of enlistment, desertion and re-enlistment for the bounty paid in the Foreign Legion, every man's finger prints are taken and kept on file.

The First Railway Gauge.

An interesting story was told by one of George Stephenson's biographers relating how the great engineer came to adopt the four foot eight and a half inch gauge for his railways. Some time previous to the building of his Newcastle and Carlisle railway Stephenson had an opportunity of inspecting some portion of an old Roman wall, through which the chariots used to be driven. Deep ruts made by the chariot wheels were still visible, and on measuring these he found their distance apart to be as near as possible four feet eight and a half inches. Stephenson thereupon came to the conclusion that if a world power like the Romans had made such use of the measure for its chariots he could not be wrong in adopting those measurements as a rule for his railway.

Fogs Bewilder Birds.

It is a curious thing that, though human beings are utterly bewildered in a dense fog, most animals find their way through it without much difficulty. A horse will trot along in its right direction as though the air were perfectly clear, and not only that, but will take the right turning at the right moment if it is at all accustomed to the road. A human being would take any turning but the right one. Birds, on the other hand, are utterly bewildered by fogs. Pigeons, for instance, will remain motionless all day long, half asleep, huddled up in their pigeon houses. Chickens and poultry of all kinds won't stir all the time a heavy fog is about. Birds of all kinds, as a matter of fact, seem helpless during foggy weather.—Pearson's.

Snow Garlands.

Curious ropes of snow that form on window ledges, tree branches, etc., at a temperature near freezing point have been brought to notice by Dr. Karl Kassner as "snow garlands." One of these ropes photographed on the building of the Meteorological institute in Berlin was four inches in thickness and was suspended by the two ends, the distance between the points of support being three and three-quarters feet and the vertical sag about one and one-half inches. The snow on the little projection of the wall, it is supposed, was warmed by the heat of the building, when the middle slipped down and, being thus removed from the source of heat, froze again.

He Told Her.

A middle aged governess on arriving at a new situation was formally introduced to the family, and the next morning "Master Tom," the hopeful of the family, said to her, "Miss Parker, are you Leghorn or Cochin-China?" "Why do you ask such an extraordinary question?" she asked.

"Because," answered the boy, "I heard dad say to mummy after you left the room last night that you were no longer a chicken."

AGRICULTURE IN SCHOOLS.

The University of California has sent out a circular to the press of the state in regard to the teaching of agriculture in the public schools. The University has a College of Agriculture with 350 students enrolled for a four-year course and the circular tells of the scarcity of teachers in that branch. To supply this demand the university has started a division of agricultural education at the head of which department we notice the name of Prof. Ernest B. Babcock, who was at one time the principal of the Fourth street school in Glendale. Associated with him are Professors Hummel and Stebbins and these three devote the entire time to teaching prospective teachers, visiting schools where agriculture is taught and helping the movement by correspondence and other ways. Our schools can do no better work after teaching thoroughly the fundamentals of an education than is possible by interesting pupils and instructing them in that productive art which is at the bottom of all human industry, the art of winning from the soil the things which are necessary to the sustenance of the human family.

To what extent agriculture should be taught in the grammar and high schools, however, is a matter to be gone into carefully. There is a tendency just now to overload the curriculum of the schools. Every addition to it is made at the expense of something that is already in and there are many even among the prominent educators who are of the opinion that the structure is being made top heavy at the sacrifice of basic principles. Everything that is good cannot in the nature of things be taught in the schools and it requires a fine discrimination to mark the limit, but that limitation should certainly be recognized.

SPEEDERS.

It's a dull Sunday that Marshal Miller does not catch some game on Central avenue in the shape of reckless drivers of automobiles. One of the latest victims was W. T. S. Hammond, cashier of the First National Bank of Los Angeles, whom he brought before Recorder Whomes. The judge has raised his rates and assessed Mr. Hammond ten dollars.

California:

Its History and Romance IN YOUR HOME

It is of utmost importance that you should read this splendid offer we are making to our readers.

We have the strongest and most remarkable combination at an attractive price, that appeals to every home. It is with pleasure we are able to state that we have made arrangements with the Grafton Publishing Company to put into your home John S. McGroarty's splendid history, "California: Its History and Romance," and one year's subscription for the popular WEST COAST MAGAZINE, in combination with our paper, at small cost.

CALIFORNIA: ITS HISTORY AND ROMANCE

Is in one volume, by JOHN S. McGROARTY, California's most loved writer. It is a literary treasure, as well as a most fascinating account of the principal events in California's thrilling history from the day when Cabrillo, in 1582, sailed into the harbor, now San Diego, down to the building of the Owens river aqueduct. It appeals especially to the man or woman who wishes to acquire a fund of accurate information concerning California history without the necessary hard work of the student.

"California: Its History and Romance," was first put out in De Luxe and sold for $25.00 a volume. $10,000.00 worth of histories were sold in advance of publication to California's most prominent men. The popular edition now offered is in ten chapters and has an index of 21 pages, containing information on a variety of subjects that even alone would make a valuable addition to any library. It is splendidly bound in cloth, illustrated with handsome photo-engravings, large, plain, readable type, size 6¼ by 9½—425 pages.

"No State in the Union can match California for romance and activities of commerce, and these two elements the author sets forth with a pen dipped in the Golden rivers. With authoritative history is presented in such guise as this, it makes fiction seem a pale product indeed."—N. Y. Press.

THE WEST COAST MAGAZINE is the largest and most popular magazine in the Southwest, edited by John S. McGroarty. Here you will get each month Mr. McGroarty's pleasing and instructive articles, stories and poems. THE WEST COAST MAGAZINE is a home magazine, with departments for every member of the family. A welcome guest in every household, a friend who brings good cheer, and whose presence is not only charming but helpful.

GLENDALE, CAL., APRIL 12, 1912

Citizens of this vicinity who depend upon the Los Angeles papers for their Glendale news will learn this week that P. D. Woodbury has been elected city clerk by defeating H. L. Haley and that T. B. Hoffman was elected constable. All of which we confess is a "scoop" on the NEWS.

The Los Angeles Times with typographical inaccuracy reports that the Glendale News Company has paid $41,000 for a lot on Fourth street. Friends of this paper and others are informed that the matter of purchase is correct, but that the figure quoted is a few years in advance of the price actually paid.

The contrast between the successful Amundsen and our own Peary, is striking. The former instead of giving an exhibition of his jealousy when a supposed rival was the subject, showed the spirit of the generous sailor when he expressed the hope that Capt. Scott when he returned to civilization would also be able to tell of his successful voyage to the South Pole.

"What is politics, daddy?"

"Politics, my son, and my dear little daughter, is the high art of successfully fooling the people."

"What is reform?"

"Reform, little ones, is a good thing but liable to be overworked."

"What is that man jumping up and down for?"

"Oh, he thinks he is going some where."

In the estimation of the masses it may be true that "nothing succeeds like success," but we believe that the verdict of history will accord to President Taft great credit for having given his country the opportunity of placing upon its statute books these two great constructive pieces of statesmanship, the Peace Treaties and the Reciprocity Treaty with Canada. Compared with these two achievements, great even if unratified, certain much-lauded "policies" look infinitely small.

The primary election in Illinois on Tuesday, gave nearly all of the delegates from that state to the Republican National Convention to Roosevelt. The result was not unexpected, and helps to add interest to the great contest. Of course the statement of Roosevelt's manager, Senator Dixon, that "this ends the Taft campaign for the nomination," is all nonsense. Success in Illinois was vital to Roosevelt's campaign, Taft having already secured New York.

Dixon evidently works on the old-fashioned plan in politics, "Claim everything and get what you can."

The discovery will ultimately be made after the enthusiasm for the experiment has passed that the new primary laws are to a great extent a delusion and a snare in practical application. In the Illinois primary held Tuesday last, the Democratic ticket was two feet and a half in length and the marking of it required twelve minutes. In a large proportion of cases an intelligent vote upon a long list of candidates and measures, is not only impossible to the average citizen, but to those who are several points above average.

The men who in the final accounting, find the largest balance to their credit in the Book of Life are those who were more concerned about what they owed to others than about what others owed to them.

A writer deplores the fact that none of the men mentioned for the nomination for president this year have the log-cabin tradition of many of the great Americans in public life a few years ago. That is true, yet no one knows in what remote and lonely farmhouse or in what squalid tenement are playing today the children who will guide the destinies of the republic a generation hence. The era of the log cabin is past, but the country is still the land of unlimited opportunity. —Youth's Companion.

Newspapers are a good index to the enterprise of the places they represent. This reflection, which is not very original, comes to us after looking through some of our exchanges. In five or six years' acquaintance with our contemporaries of the "county press" many changes have been noted, and yet there are a number of them that present the old familiar forms and faces that they showed us years ago. A few have improved to an extent that is very striking.

It is pretty safe to assume that in the instances in which no particular change in the line of improvement has been made, the cause is not to be attributed to the proprietor and editor. He is no doubt giving the community just the kind of a paper that the people want. If his constituency is satisfied with a small sheet, mostly ready-print, it is not illogical to assume that the people the editor caters to are easily satisfied in other respects and in most cases a real live paper would be wasted in that community. Publishers of newspapers in small towns like to lay the flattering unction to their souls that they "mould public opinion," etc., but as a matter of fact, it is the town that makes the newspaper and not the reverse. There are some places so unresponsive to the efforts of the publisher of a newspaper to make better conditions that the long-suffering editor would be justified in packing up his collar box and walking out of town.

THE MUNICIPAL ELECTION.

The NEWS congratulates the people of Glendale upon the fact that there will be no more elections here for at least thirty days. They are further to be congratulated upon the result of the municipal contest. Messrs. Watson and Lane are re-elected, as they deserved, and Mr. Tower is the new member of the board. The latter gentleman has all the qualifications necessary for filling the office to which he is elected and he will no doubt live up to the expectations of his many friends. There were other good candidates in the field, and even those who were defeated will no doubt agree that the affairs of the city of Glendale are still in good hands and that there is every reason to believe that the municipal government will continue to be administered with the same consideration for the welfare of its people that has characterized the governing body of the city since it came into its existence.

The election decided more than the question as to who shall fill the offices. the majority of the voters showed their appreciation for public service well performed and demonstrated their lack of sympathy for political slates. There was more politics in the contest by a very large percentage than was necessary, the result being the injection into the campaign of a lot of ancient history and personalities which had no proper place there.

The NEWS favored giving the western side of Glendale a representative on the board of trustees, but the people of that section failed to agree among themselves as to a candidate with the result that there was no one elected who resides west of Brand boulevard. In practical effect, however, we do not believe that the people of that section are the losers as their interests will no doubt be as impartially protected as those of the other portions of the city. Probably before another election for city officials occurs, Glendale will have a freeholders charter which will provide for the division of the city into wards with a representative from each of them on the governing body. The trustees for the next two years will have to wrestle with a number of serious problems among them the water question, ordinances to fit newly acquired territory and the lowering of the railroad tracks on Brand boulevard. Action on these matters can not be long deferred. Altogether the city fathers will have an opportunity to earn the small stipend which attaches to the office, and to accumulate merit also.

"THE BLIGHT OF PINCHOTISM."

Under the above caption the Owens Valley Herald of Bishop, Cal., has an article dealing with the conservation question which but for its length we should be glad to copy in its entirety. It calls attention to a specific instance as showing how the conservation policy of President Roosevelt and Forester Pinchot works out in actual practice. At Lundy in Mono County, California, the Hydro-Electric Company has a power plant to supply power to certain mining camps in Nevada. Some six months ago in constructing its line to Nevada, the company was held up as about to cross a corner (3800 feet) of the Mono Forest Reserve, by reserve officials. The matter was taken up in court. It was shown that the alleged forest reserve had no forest on it at all but was part of a large barren area. The court held that the reserve having been officially withdrawn, it had no jurisdiction and the company must abide by the action of the reserve officials. Then the company appealed to Congress for relief through representative Raker in whose district the case lay. Congress by a vote of 98 to 29 refused to grant the relief, the majority no doubt being influenced more by the general "Conservation" spirit than by the real merits of the case.

In the meantime a half dozen mining camps in Nevada are suffering from the blight of idleness. The Herald very aptly says:

"We wonder how the East, say New York, would look upon a plan to withdraw Niagara Falls from use, as a generator of electric power, and throw that gigantic force back into the ownership of the American people, to rush unused for another decade of centuries? Who will furnish the money to harness these unused water torrents, unless private capital does? Electric power is a public utility, the same as railroads, as street car lines, as telephones, and telegraphs. Why not conserve these by withdrawing them from use? There would be as much justice in it, and as much sense as in withholding the unused waters of our western mountains from use. Public utilities, whenever the people wish to own them, may be secured by the people by a very simple method. But certain it is, that for many years to come, the people will not be ready to begin, through government agencies, the development of these resources. Then shall these resources lie idle, and waste, until that time does arrive, even though the people may already be in need of them? Just so, shall the mines of Nevada lie idle until Mr. Pinchot, and his band of "Conservationists," have figured out a way to develop the power resources of the High Sierras?"

AN APPRECIATIVE CALIFORNIAN WRITES FROM EXILE.

Editor NEWS:

Mrs. Fram and I arrived here on January 20th. When we left Los Angeles three days previous the electric fan kept the car comfortable, but here in Illinois it required not a fan to keep you comfortable, but a load of woolens and shawls and coats and muffs and mitts if you ventured outside, while indoors it was necessary to keep a constant roaring fire (like unto a young inferno) to keep the house warm. While in our glorious, sunny and delightful California flowers and birds and sunshine made life worth living, one was greeted here by icicles, snow and death and cold (and dirt). The mercury hovered around zero continually and on February 18th it went above freezing point and all the snow disappeared over night to make room for slush and mud; but it was warmer and we were glad. Was not spring coming and with it flowers and birds and vegetation and life? But on the 20th we had such a storm (blizzard) with snow and ice and cold and I fondly hoped it would be the last effort of winter; but it has kept it up ever since, one blizzard a week until today, on the first of April it is raining. Yesterday I heard a few birds singing and you can notice the swelling of the tree buds. It is warmer and spring seems to get the better of it.

FOURTH STREET PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Fourth street school will meet for its regular monthly meeting Thursday, April 18th, in the Fourth street school building. The meeting will be devoted to the annual election of officers after which a pleasant social hour will be enjoyed and refreshments served. All women interested in this line of work will always be made most welcome.

SIXTH STREET PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION.

The regular monthly meeting of the Sixth street Parent-Teacher Association will be held in the Sixth street school building on Friday at three o'clock. The address of the day will be made by Mrs. C. C. Noble who returned Wednesday from the national convention of the Congress of Mothers held in St. Louis. Mrs. Noble will give an interesting account of the convention which has been one of the most important ever held, following the address a musical program will be rendered and the afternoon will be completed with a social hour and the serving of refreshments. All women, whether mothers or not, are urged to be present at these meetings.

IN THE LIGHTING DEPARTMENT

Light department is figuring on the bids for supplying about $25,000 worth of material for the extension of the lighting system. These bids will be passed on next week and the material will begin to come in in about a fort night, but some of it will require two or three months for delivery. Work will begin before May 1st. About one-half the money due for the ornamental street lights has been paid in. This assessment becomes delinquent next Tuesday. It amounts to one dollar per front foot in the district covered Money has not been received yet on the sale of thirty thousand dollars worth of bonds, sold to J. H. Adams & Co., but is expected daily. When this money is received the city will proceed immediately to take over the Brand plant in the territory recently annexed on the west and north.

P.E.O. GATHERING.

On Wednesday in their artistic home at 111 Cedar street, Mrs. I. M. Hall, Miss Belle N. Hall and Mrs. J. T. Anderson entertained the members of Chapter W of P.E.O. of Los Angeles and Chapter L of P.E.O. of Glendale. The morning was devoted to an interesting business session of Chapter W, during which the year book for the coming year was discussed and delegates were elected to attend the annual state convention at Riverside. At high noon a delicious course luncheon was served, Mrs. R. A. Blackburn and Mrs. Frank Woodruff assisting hostesses in serving. Decorations were carried out in Easter blossoms. During the afternoon a fine musicale and literary program was rendered consisting of piano solos by Professor Clarence Krinbill, readings by Miss Leslie Stone and vocal selections by Mrs. William Duffield who sang her own compositions which have recently been published. Prominent P.E.O.'s who were present were Mrs. S. C. Campbell of Chicago and Mrs. A. C. Briggs of Los Angeles, past supreme presidents; Mrs. S. A. Craver and Miss Martha Winans, past state presidents; Mrs. George Brown, present state organizer; Mrs. Frank McKain, present state treasurer; and Mrs. Malone Joyce, president of Chapter W and past organizer of the Middle West states.

The program for the day was given under the auspices of Mrs. Frank G. Tyrrell.

Mr. H. P. Coker, city trustee, has been selected as superintendent of a paper soon to be established in Los Angeles, to be called the "Globe." Mr. Coker is an experienced newspaper man, being formerly connected with the Los Angele Record. As the names of such well-known Democrats as Albert M. Norton and Timothy Spellacy appear in the list of directors, it is fair to assume that its political complexion will be Democratic.

CHARMING EASTER MUSICALE.

Clarence E. Krinbill and Miss Vera Kimball were host and hostess to nearly one hundred guests last Thursday evening at the home of the latter on Orange street. The affair was an Easter musicale, at which the special guests of honor were the Glendale piano pupils of Mr. Krinbill and these with their parents made up a good share of the company present.

The home was appropriately decorated for the occasion, little yellow chickens being in evidence everywhere, little chick favors were also given those present.

Miss Kimball's piano playing was splendid, and a credit to both herself and Mr. Krinbill's instruction. Selections were given by Gottschalk, Goldner, Bendel, Chaminade, and de Kouski, and marked talent and superior coaching were very evident. Mr. Krinbill has reason to be proud of the work of such a pupil as Miss Vera.

Three assisting Los Angeles artists enhanced the worth and pleasure of the program. Miss Laura Legerton, a dramatic contralto of superb voice and style, who recently sang to the compliment of Schuman-Heinck; Miss Elsie Haller, a charming soprano with a voice of wonderful breadth and feeling, and Percy Bowne, a lyric tenor of splendid ability and training and evident future, gave songs by Tosti, Gounod, Nevin, Buck and Schubert.

After the program the guests were invited to the dining room where fruit punch and cakes were ably served by John Kimball, assisted by the Misses Alpha Pringle, Gladys Anderson and Rita Kimball.

Such successful artistic affairs is another evidence that Glendale is forging ahead musically as well as in other ways.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS.

Within a few days the big tent for the evangelistic meetings will be pitched on the lots at the corner of Fourth and Louise streets. Evangelist C. R. Handenschield will hold his first service Thursday evening, April 18th. On Wednesday evening a service will be held in the tent. Rev. W. E. Edmonds will be the speaker and Prof. H. A. Farrar the singer will be present and conduct the song service. It is desired that this first meeting shall be largely attended.

EASTER BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Little Miss Shirley Chase of 615 W. Fourth street received guests at her home on Saturday in honor of her sixth birthday anniversary. A long happy afternoon was passed playing Easter games, among others an Easter egg hunt, the fortunate discoverer of the largest number being awarded a really handsome "Peter Rabbit." Refreshments were served at a quaintly decorated table. Bunny rabbits and baby chickens peeped from every nook.

One of the chief attractions was a beautiful birthday cake bearing six lighted candles. Those who enjoyed Miss Shirley's hospitality were Miss Barbara Kranz, Miss Marjorie Temple, Miss Virginia Hunchberger, Miss Neva Collier and Miss Lucile Hutton of Los Angeles.

"GLENDALE, THE JEWEL CITY."

This is the title of a publication put out in magazine form by Stamats & McClure, which has just come off the press. The descriptive articles are well written, and it is creditable to the publication that it has no write-ups of "prominent citizens," such as are usually found in pamphlets of this nature. The illustrations are well selected, a fine bird's-eye view of Glendale adorning the title page. Copies for sale at the News office. Price 15 cents.

AN UNUSUAL AMOUNT OF PAINTING DONE THIS SPRING.

"Everything comes to those who hustle while they wait" seems to be the motto adopted by our energetic merchants, Cornwell & Kelty, for they have certainly been hustling this spring.

In backing up their excellent advertising in the columns of the NEWS their handsome window displays have proved most effective. According to a conversation with one of our reporters there has been an unusual amount of painting done in Glendale this spring. That's a sign of prosperity we're very glad to see.

This week floor paint is the leader in their window. How an old scratched floor or a marred bare floor can be given a hard, serviceable, easily-kept-clean surface is clearly shown by the sample they display.

Rexall Liver Salts clears the complexion, aids digestion and corrects all disorders of the liver. Only at Nesom's Drug Store.

EASTER CARD PARTY.

Saturday evening Mrs. George B. Woodberry of 419 Glendale avenue, received a few of the members of the younger set at her home on behalf of her daughter, Miss Anna Woodberry. The arrangements for the evening's enjoyments were especially happy. After a pleasant hour spent around the open fireplace five hundred was indulged in. A unique and delightful plan of awarding prizes was carried out; honors were graciously awarded the winners of the highest score, Miss Edith Cutler and Mr. Harold McElroy, but to the possessors of the lowest scores were awarded as consolation a handsome U. S. C. pennant and a U. S. C. pillow. These were received by Miss Berenice Williams and Mr. Gus Pulliam. Upon adjourning to the dining room the guests were served a delicious supper. Table appointments were entirely in yellow and white and suggestive of Easter. A cut glass bowl of jonquils beneath a yellow and white electrolier formed a most effective center piece. Individual favors were tiny baskets filled with Easter eggs. Those who enjoyed the evening were Miss Edith Cutler, Miss Evelyn Ryan, Miss Berenice Williams, Mr. Leo Wheeler, Mr. George Mitchell, Mr. Harold McElroy and Mr. Gus Pulliam.

CELEBRATE ITS BIRTHDAY.

The anniversary services of the First M. E. church of Casa Verdugo were held on Sabbath, April 7, and were in every way a success. In the morning the Sabbath school had charge and rendered a splendid program. The church was beautifully decorated and all was conducive to the good of all.

In the afternoon the sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Healey. It called forth great praise from all who heard him and will be of lasting good. The choir of the West Glendale M. E. church did excellent singng and endeared themselves to all lovers of sacred music.

The service in the evening was a praise service that was a real joy. Mr. Parker, sr., was at his best, which is always good, and gave a splendid address. A song of his own composition was sung, much to the delight of the congregation.

Paul and Will McConnell of Highland Park rendered very satisfactory praise service. They play and sing well.

Report was given that the entire amount on the church building had been paid and about $400 of reliable subscriptions is to be applied on the lots secured for the church. It seems that a good work is being done by this young society.

REGISTER.

The presidential preference primary election will be held May 14. Registration for this election closes April 14. Voters on the old register may vote at this election if they registered their party affiliation; if not, they must register anew, stating whether they are Republicans, Democrats or Socialists. In order to vote at the general election in November, every voter must have registered since Jan. 1, 1912.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Where Starlings Bring Ruin.

In "Quiet Days in Spain," the author, C. B. Luffman, describes the ravages of the starlings in a hacienda devoted to raising muscatel raisins near Malaga:

"Dogs and goats are very fond of grapes and are only kept off them by rural guards, but the greatest enemy of all is the starling. This bird flies over from Africa in such millions as literally to darken the earth. Wherever they camp for the night they leave a desert. Every particle of fruit, leaf, tender shoot and piece of soft bark vanishes. As the saying is, 'Many crops spell various fortunes; one crop of starlings spells ruin.' The blowing of a southern wind and the sound of wings in the air produces panic, men's faces blanch with terror. In despair, bells are rung, guns fired, torches lighted, and donkeys, mules and horses are galloped up and down and round about to scare 'los bichos'—the beasts—as they are termed."

To Escape Gold Bricks.

A man or a woman with funds to invest should make it a primary principle to first consult an experienced banking house of established reputation. The first step in the prudent investment of your money is the selection of your banking house. You should choose a banker not only willing but competent to serve your every need—one with the requisite patience and sympathy to study your investment problem from all angles, to make your problem his problem. Few investors realize that within the past few years there has sprung up a new guild in the banking business, bankers whose business runs well over $100,000,000 annually and whose success is largely due to the faithful and thoughtful attention given each serious inquiry or request for advice. If you can save and invest $100 or more each year you can command the best financial brains in America.—Charles E. Merrill in Leslie's.

An Astronomer's Wit.

Professor Adams of Cambridge university, England, who discovered the planet Neptune, was a distinguished proof that a man may have his head among the clouds and still keep a ready wit for mundane occasions. At a dinner of the Philosophical society, runs a contribution to the Cornhill Magazine, one of the company was concluding an after dinner speech about the activities of the society for the past year. He pointed to the book of the proceedings lying on the table near him, adding:

"But of all the proceedings this year, gentlemen, you will agree with me that one of the best is this [waving his hand at the assembled diners] philosophical proceeding."

"Illustrated with plates!" flashed out Professor Adams to his neighbor at the table.

"Ma," said little Harry, "I'll tell you what you ought to do."

"What, dear?" his mother asked.

"You ought to go over to live in some country where the people are Mohammedans."

"What on earth ever put such a thought as that into your dear head, darling?"

"'Cause over there they think all fat women are beautiful."

"Harry, if you dare to open your mouth again this evening you will be sent to bed with nothing to eat!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

More Exactly Stated.

Jamie, having come into the possession of considerable wealth through the death of relatives, was thus addressed by one of the neighbors:

"Aye, Jamie, it was a guid thing for you that your rich freens waur born afore ye."

"Weel," said Jamie, "I'm nae sae sure aboot that, but it was a guid thing that they dee'd afore me."—London Tit-Bits.

A Good Scheme.

Husband—Why do you scold the butcher? It isn't his fault that the meat comes to the table all dried up. Scold the cook. Wife—I don't dare to, but I'm in hopes that if I keep on scolding the butcher he'll get mad and come around and scold the cook.

Amazed.

Newman—I met your wife today for the first time, and, for one thing, I found she was outspoken. Henpeck—You surprise me! By whom?—Philadelphia Press.

Puffed Up.

Post—Thinks he's the whole thing, doesn't he? Parker—Well, I'd hardly go as far as that, but he certainly considers himself a quorum.—Smart Set.

Lost Control.

Reed—Did you hear about my neighbor losing control of his automobile?

Greene—No, I didn't.

"Well, he did. The sheriff's got it now."—Yonkers Statesman.

A charmingly arranged Easter luncheon was given Thursday by Mrs. F. H. Dickman of 526 West Fifth street. Flower decorations were of jonquils and ferns displayed in a most effective fashion. Dainty place cards were suggestive of Easter and marked covers for Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Switser of Pasadena; Mrs. Dodge, Mrs. Ream, Mrs. Sprague and Mrs. Andruzett of Los Angeles; Mrs. Liby Brown, Mrs. Dana Goss, Jr., Mrs. William Goss and Mrs. C. W. Burket of Glendale.

Miss Leeta McCoy of East Third street was hostess Friday to a number of her girl friends who gathered at her home for a farewell afternoon, prior to Miss McCoy's six months' visit in the eastern states. A pleasant hour was enjoyed with needlework, after which various guessing contests occupied the attention and refreshments were prettily served. Miss Emily Ellias, Miss Pearl Goode, Miss George Duffet, Miss Myrtle Pulliam, Miss Emma Pulliam and Miss Berenice Williams were present to enjoy the afternoon.

Disconcerting.

A prominent English clergyman once congratulated an old lady on her bravery in fighting her way to church against a terrible tempest, but received the disconcerting reply; "My husband gets so crossgrained after meals that I have to get out of his way, so I might as well go to church."

CHAPTER XXII.

MODERN DUELING.

BARELY had Sheldon reached the Balesuna, when he heard the faint report of a distant rifle and knew it was the signal of Tudor, giving notice that he had reached the Berande, turned about, and was coming back. Sheldon fired his rifle into the air in answer, and in turn proceeded to advance. He moved as in a dream, absent mindedly keeping to the open beach. The thing was so preposterous that he had to struggle to realize it, and he reviewed in his mind the conversation with Tudor, trying to find some clew to the common sense of what he was dong. He did not want to kill Tudor. Because that man had blundered in his love making was no reason that he, Sheldon, should take his life. Then what was it all about? True, the fellow had insulted Joan by his subsequent remarks and been knocked down for it, but because he had knocked him down was no reason that he should now try to kill him.

In this fashion he covered a quarter of the distance between the two rivers, when it dawned upon him that Tudor was not on the beach at all. Of course not. He was advancing, according to the terms of the agreement, in the shelter of the cocoanut trees. Sheldon promptly swerved to the left to seek similar shelter, when the faint crack of a rifle came to his ears, and almost immediately the bullet, striking the hard sand a hundred feet beyond him, ricochetted and whined onward in a second flight, convincing him that preposterous and unreal as it was, it was, nevertheless, a sober fact. It had been intended for him. Yet even then it was hard to believe.

Keeping now to the shelter of the trees, he went forward another quarter of a mile. If Tudor had advanced with equal speed they should have come together at that point, and Sheldon concluded that the other was circling. The difficulty was to locate him. The rows of trees, running at right angles, enabled him to see along only one narrow avenue at a time. His enemy might be coming along the next avenue or the next to right or left. He might be a hundred feet away or half a mile. Sheldon plodded on and decided that the old stereotyped duel was far simpler and easier than this protracted hide and seek affair. He, too, tried circling, in the hope of cutting the other's circle; but, without catching a glimpse of him, he finally emerged upon a fresh clearing where the young trees, waist high, afforded little shelter and less hiding. Just as he emerged, stepping out a pace, a rifle cracked to his right, and, though he did not hear the bullet in passing, the thud of it came to his ears when it struck a palm trunk farther on.

He sprang back into the protection of the larger trees. Twice he had exposed himself and been fired at, while he had failed to catch a single glimpse of his antagonist. A slow anger began to burn in him. It was deucedly unpleasant, he decided, this being peppered at, and, nonsensical as it really was, it was none the less deadly serious. There was no avoiding the issue, no firing in the air and getting over with it, as in the old fashioned duel. This mutual man hunt must keep up until one got the other. And if one neglected a chance to get the other that increased the other's chance to get him. There could be no false sentiment about it. Tudor had been a cunning devil when he proposed this sort of duel, Sheldon concluded, as he began to work along cautiously in the direction of the last shot.

When he arrived at the spot Tudor was gone, and only his footprints remained, pointing out the course he had taken into the depths of the plantation. Once, ten minutes later, he caught a glimpse of Tudor, a hundred yards away, crossing the same avenue as himself, but going in the opposite direction. His rifle half leaped to his shoulder, but the other was gone. More in whim than in hope of result, grinning to himself as he did so, Sheldon raised his automatic pistol and in two seconds sent eight shots scattering through the trees in the direction in which Tudor had disappeared. Wishing he had a shotgun, Sheldon dropped to the ground behind a tree, slipped a fresh clip up the hollow butt of the pistol, threw a cartridge into the chamber, shoved the safety catch into place and reloaded the empty clip.

It was but a short time after that that Tudor tried the same trick on him, the bullets pattering about him like spiteful rain, thudding into the palm trunks or glancing off in whining ricochets. The last bullet of all, making a double ricochet from two different trees and losing most of its momentum, struck Sheldon a sharp blow on the forehead and dropped at his feet. He was partly stunned for the moment, but on investigation found no greater harm than a nasty lump that soon rose to the size of a pigeon's egg.

Tiring of the endless circling, Sheldon tried once more to advance directly on his foe, but the latter was too crafty, taking advantage of his eagerness to fire a couple of shots at him and slipping away on some changed and continually changing course. For an hour they dodged and turned and twisted back and forth and around and hunted each other among the orderly palms. They caught fleeting glimpses of each other and chanced flying shots which were without result. On a grassy shelter behind a tree Sheldon came upon where Tudor had rested and smoked a cigarette. The pressed grass showed where he had sat. At one side lay the cigarette stump and the charred match which had lighted it. In front lay a scattering of bright metallic fragments. Sheldon recognized their significance. Tudor was notching his steel jacketed bullets or cutting them blunt, so that they would spread on striking—in short, he was making them into the vicious dumdum prohibited in modern warfare. Sheldon knew now what would happen to him if a bullet struck his body. It would leave a tiny hole where it entered, but the hole where it emerged would be the size of a saucer.

He decided to give up the pursuit and lay down in the grass, protected right and left by the row of palms, with, on either hand, the long avenue extending. This he could watch. Tudor would have to come to him or else there would be no termination of the affair. He wiped the sweat from his face and tied the handkerchief around his neck to keep off the stinging gnats that lurked in the grass. Never had he felt so great a disgust for the thing called "adventure." Joan had been bad enough with her Baden-Powell and long barreled Colt's, but here was this newcomer, also looking for adventure and finding it in no other way than by lugging a peace loving planter into an absurd and preposterous bushwhacking duel. If ever adventure was well damned it was by Sheldon, sweating in the windless grass and fighting gnats, the while he kept close watch up and down the avenue.

Then Tudor came. Sheldon happened to be looking in his direction at the moment he came into view, peering quickly up and down the avenue before he stepped into the open. Midway he stopped, as if debating what course to pursue. He made a splendid mark, facing his concealed enemy at 200 yards distance. Sheldon aimed at the center of his chest, then deliberately shifted the aim to his right shoulder, and, with the thought, "That will put him out of business," pulled the trigger. The bullet, driving with momentum sufficient to perforate a man's body a mile distant, struck Tudor with such force as to pivot him, whirling him half around by the shock of its impact and knocking him down.

"Hope I haven't killed the beggar," Sheldon muttered aloud, springing to his feet and running forward.

A hundred feet away all anxiety on that score was relieved by Tudor, who made shift with his left hand and from his automatic pistol buried a rain of bullets all around Sheldon. The latter dodged behind a palm trunk, counting the shots, and when the eighth had been fired he rushed in on the wounded man. He kicked the pistol out of the other's hand and then sat down on him in order to keep him down.

"Be quiet," he said. "I've got you, so there's no use struggling."

Tudor still attempted to struggle and to throw him off.

"Keep quiet, I tell you," Sheldon commanded. "I'm satisfied with the outcome, and you've got to be. So you might as well give in and call this affair closed."

Tudor reluctantly relaxed.

"Rather funny, isn't it, these modern duels?" Sheldon grinned down at him as he removed his weight. "Not a bit dignified. If you'd struggled a moment longer I'd have rubbed your face in the earth. I've a good mind to do it anyway, just to teach you that dueling has gone out of fashion. Now, let us see to your injuries."

"You only got me that last," Tudor grunted sullenly, "lying in ambush like"—

"Like a wild Indian. Precisely. You've caught the idea, old man." Sheldon ceased his mocking and stood up. "You lie there quietly until I send back some of the boys to carry you in. You're not seriously hurt, and it's lucky for you I didn't follow your example. If you had been struck with one of your own bullets a carriage and pair would have been none too large to drive through the hole it would have made. As it is you're drilled clean—a nice little perforation. All you need is antiseptic washing and dressing and you'll be around in a month. Now, take it easy, and I'll send a stretcher for you."

APPLE DAINTIES.

EAT apples and live to be a hundred is advice some of us were given by our grandmothers. Wise old ladies, they knew the value of this fruit in keeping the system in order. Their own rosy cheeks and fair white skins were proofs of the value of their doctrine.

Apple Fritters.

For lunch there are apple fritters, golden dainties that come from the frying pan with an aroma that would tempt an epicure. If you have never made apple fritters try this recipe: Peel, core and cut two good sized sour apples into eighths, then slicing the eighths.

Prepare a batter of one and one-third cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, two-thirds of a cupful of milk and one egg. Stir the slices of apple into the batter and drop by spoonfuls into hot fat. Fry until brown. Drain the fritters on paper, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and serve hot.

Apple Scallop.

Apple scallop is also worth a trial. It is easy to prepare. Peel and slice about a dozen small apples. Butter a baking dish and place in it a layer of apples, then one of sugar, cinnamon, flour and butter.

You may now add another layer of apples and so continue until the dish is filled. Sprinkle cake crumbs over the top or add a layer of meringue. Bake slowly in the oven for an hour.

Apple lovers will enjoy apple and mint jelly. To prepare it take two pounds of tart apples, two bunches of mint, one-half cupful sugar to each cupful of juice and juice of one lemon. Cut the apples in small pieces and add a little water.

When it has been partly cooked add the mint leaves, which have been washed, dried and chopped fine. Strain when soft, keeping the juice that runs through first separate from that which is pressed through, as the first juice makes the clearer jelly. Measure the juice and add equal parts of sugar in proportion to the juice. Boil to the jelly state. A short time before it is done add the lemon juice and something to tint the jelly green.

Anna Thompson.

Killed by Imagination.

A workman on the Siberian railway was accidentally locked into a refrigerator car and was afterward found dead. Imagining that he was being slowly frozen to death, he had recorded his sufferings with a piece of chalk on the floor. The refrigerating apparatus, however, was out of order, and the temperature in the car had not fallen below 50 degrees F. throughout the journey.

Identified by an Old Habit.

"It was a clever job," said the chief. "How did you spot him through his woman's disguise?"

"I happened to see him sit down," replied the detective, "and noticed that he gave his skirt a little twitch with both hands, as if to keep it from bagging at the knees. Then I nabbed him."—London Tit-Bits.

Proved.

"But do you think you can support a wife?"

"Of course. Why, we've been engaged two years."

"Well?"

"Well, if I can buy flowers and candy for a fiancee for two years and not go broke I can surely support a wife!"

The Ticket Didn't Tick.

Moore—My sense of hearing is the keenest ever. Do you know I can hear your watch ticking, although you are six feet away? Poore—Then you're a wonder. My watch is at the pawnbroker's, six blocks away.—Boston Transcript.

False Alarm.

"I was present at a raid the other night."

"Great Scott! Were you caught?"

"Certainly not. It was a masquerade."—Baltimore American.

Getting It Up to Date.

He—They say that no man is a hero to his valet. She—And no man is a hero to his stenographer.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

'Tis held that sorrow makes us wise.—Tennyson.

Delicate Flattery.

Silicus—What do you consider the most delicate form of flattery? Cynicus—Telling a married man he doesn't look it.—Philadelphia Record.

He who wishes to secure the good of others has already secured his own.—Confucius.

Trying a Joke.

Some years ago in a North Carolina court, Judge Shipp presiding, the trial of a cause had been protracted till near midnight. The jury were tired and sleepy and showed flagging attention. Willie Murchison, who was addressing the jury, thought to arouse them, so he said, "Gentlemen, I will tell you an anecdote." Instantly the judge, the jury and the few spectators pricked up their ears and were all attention, as Murchison was admirable in that line, had a fund of anecdotes and no one could tell them better. But he soon proceeded to tell one of the dullest, prosiest and most pointless jokes possible. Everybody looked disappointed. The judge, leaning over, said in an unmistakable tone of disappointment, "Mr. Murchison, I don't see the point of that joke." "Nor I either," replied the witty counsel. "But your honor told it to me on our way down here, and as I thought the lack of appreciation must be due to my obtuseness I concluded to give the joke a trial by jury."

Remarkable Feats of Strength.

Louis de Bouffiers, who lived in the sixteenth century, could break a bar of iron with his hands. The strongest man could not take from him a ball which he held between his thumb and first finger. While standing up, with no support whatever, four strong soldiers could not move him. He remained as firm as a rock. Sometimes he amused himself by taking on his shoulders his own horse, fully harnessed, and with that heavy load he promenaded the public square, to the great delight of the inhabitants. At about the same time there lived a Spaniard named Piedro, who could break the strongest handcuffs that could be put around his wrists. He folded his arms on his chest, and ten men pulling in different directions with ropes could not unfold them. Augustus II., elector of Saxony, was a man of great strength. He could carry a man in his open hand.

The Puppy's Fault.

An enthusiastic feminist is entertaining friends by reading the lines which Sheridan indited to the puppy with a canister tied to its tail. Lord Erskine, it appears, had likened wives to that same canister, and, Lady Erskine being justly annoyed by the remark, Sheridan dashed off the following impromptu:

Lord Erskine, at woman presuming to rail,
Called a wife a tin canister tied to one's tail,
And fair Lady Ann while the subject he carries on
Seems hurt at his lordship's degrading comparison.
But wherefore degrading, considered aright?
A canister's polished and useful and bright,
And should dirt its original purity hide,
That's the fault of the puppy to whom it is tied.

Flying Powers of Birds.

The rate at which some birds can migrate under favorable conditions is extraordinary, and as one listens to their plaintive cries coming from the darkness overhead it is difficult to realize that in a few hours these same birds may be within the arctic circle and a little later may be even crossing the pole itself. * * * Less is known of the actual dates of the departure of the migratory birds in autumn than of those of their arrival earlier in the year, and this for obvious reasons. The way in which our most charming songsters silently skulk out of the country in the autumn is very different from that in which they make their triumphal entry in the spring, when every wood and copse resounds with their melodies.—Windsor Magazine.

Mrs. Washington's Gowns.

General Washington wore at his inauguration a full suit of fine cloth, the handiwork of his own household. At a ball given in New Jersey in honor of Mrs. Washington she wore a "simple russet gown" and white handkerchief about her neck. On one occasion she gave the best proof of her success in domestic manufactures by the exhibition of two of her dresses, which were composed of cotton, striped with silk and entirely homemade. The silk stripes in the fabric were woven from the ravelings of brown silk stockings and old crimson chair covers.

Musical Note.

"What's the matter over there in the horn part?" asked Dr. Strauss at a rehearsal.

"I'm sorry, Dr. Strauss," replied the horn player, "but I can not play this passage on the horn. It may be all right on the piano, but"—

"Don't worry yourself," answered the composer-conductor. "It is equally impossible on the piano."—Musical Courier.

Business Courtesy.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what is business courtesy? Pa—There are two kinds of business courtesy, my son. One is the kind extended to people who pay cash, and the other is extended to people who don't.—London Answers.

Observant Youngster.

"Gracie, did you learn anything new at school today?"

"Sure! I found out how I could eat an apple without the teacher seein' me do it."—Chicago Tribune.

Waves and Surf.

Long and oscillatory waves run by gravity, the first agitating the water to nearly the same amount at all depths, while the chief disturbance due to the latter confines itself to the upper layers of the water. These oscillatory waves, the most typical example of which is perhaps furnished by the "swell," or regular rolling waves which continue to run in deep water after a storm, will break on a shelving shore when their height is about equal to the depth of water. When the depth is sufficient to allow the oscillations to proceed unimpeded no progressive motion takes place, each column being kept in its place by the pressure of surrounding columns. If, however, free oscillation is prevented, as by the interposition of a rock or by the shelving of the shore, the columns in the deep water are not balanced by those in the shallower, and thus they acquire a progressive motion and form "breakers." For this reason waves always break against the shore, whatever is the direction of the wind.

The Influence of Flowers.

Centuries ago great, elaborate books were written about flowers, and the kinds even then were many and some of the forms were marvelous. Worship and praise have centered about flowers and garlands rather than about the fruits that we eat. This marks them to have been considered as of the higher things. All holy and great occasions need them if the occasions are complete. Not a soul but responds to blossoms even though he knows it not. No soul passes a lily in blow, an apple orchard in May, a clover field swept with red or a good garden lying at his feet, but that some mere reflection of it enters into his mind and lodges itself in some nexus of the brain. It would be difficult for any man to imagine a flowerless world, and if he conjured it in his dream he would find himself sitting in some oasis of greenery and bloom.—Flower Magazine.

No Parallels In Nature.

The wise men say there are no parallels in nature, that no one thing in the wide universe exactly mates and matches any other one thing, that each cloud has differed from every other cloud form in any hour of the day and night or day or yesterday, and so on back through the forgotten centuries, and no two leaves in form, color or texture lift the same faces to the sun on any day of the millions of years; that no wave on any beach curves and falls as any wave has curved and fallen before, not since this planet cooled. And so it is with the whirls and the crystals of driving snow, with the sand and splash of rain and so, too, with the flight of birds, the dash and tumble of the restless brook and the roar of lawless thunder and the cry of birds.—F. Hopkinson Smith.

An Expensive Luxury.

Richard Harding Davis, who knows South America intimately, told at a luncheon at the Philadelphia club a South American story.

"The Florida in Buenos Aires," he said, "is very elegant and charming, but in the past the young men were too prone to accost the beautiful women shopping and promenading there. Accordingly a law was passed which imposed a fine of $50 on any one who should dare to accost or annoy in the slightest degree any lady in Buenos Aires."

Mr. Davis paused.

"Since the passage of that law," he said solemnly, "the Florida has become quite safe, but when a beautiful woman walks in it the young men hover near her, murmuring in low and ardent tones, 'I wish I had $50.'"

A Happy Paraphrase.

The retort courteous in the paraphrase ingenious has seldom had better illustration than in the story that after the signing of the treaty of Berlin Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter presented M. Jules Cambon, with whom he had negotiated the treaty, a photograph bearing the inscription, "To my amiable friend and terrible enemy." To which M. Cambon responded by presenting his photograph inscribed, "To my terrible friend and amiable enemy."

Not the Right Kind.

A young bachelor who was beset by a sewing machine agent told the latter that his machine would not answer his purpose.

"Why," said the agent, with voluble praise, "it is the best on the market in every respect."

"That may be," replied the supposed customer, "but the sewing machine I am looking for must have flaxen hair and blue eyes."—New York Journal.

Might Do Worse.

"What's the trouble, old man? You look worried."

"I am. My son wants to start a chicken farm."

"Oh, well, try to throw it off! He might be wanting to buy or sell stuff on margins."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Improving.

"She went crazy over bridge."

"Sad, very sad!"

"Oh, no great harm done. Her family placed her in a fashionable sanitarium, and she's playing a better game than ever now."—Washington Herald.

Hard to Choose.

Walker Hike—De lady gimme a piece of angel cake and a pair of shoes. Toddle Awn—Which are yer going t' eat.—Chicago News.

Instead of "wishing" for a million dollars to give a friend give him the $5 you have.—Howe's Monthly.

Blue Balloons.

In case you ever feel tempted to buy a balloon don't buy a blue one. Red ones are the best. There is a scientific reason why. According to the researches of M. Reynaud, caoutchouc is strongly attracted by the ultra violet rays from the mercury vapor lamp with a quartz tube, which is a powerful source of such rays. This fact has a practical bearing in connection with balloon envelopes, which are treated with caoutchouc. Aeronauts are familiar with the discovery that the envelopes suffer during ascensions, and this is explained by the greater effect of ultra violet rays at high altitudes. Experiment had already led to using yellow coloring matter on the envelopes, and red balloons are sometimes seen, but never blue or violet. M. Reynaud considers that red is the best color to use, as it not only absorbs the ultra violet rays, but also the blue rays, and these last are likely to share in the bad action of the sun's rays upon balloons.—New York World.

Rock Salt Discovered by Accident.

The great rock salt deposits of Louisiana were discovered by accident in May, 1862. Salt was very scarce at that time, and the proprietor of the Island's salt works, John Marsh Avery, determined to profit by it. With this end in view he commenced to deepen his wells. One negro workman, after going down sixteen feet, came to Mr. Avery with the news that he had struck a sunken log, and could proceed no further. Mr. Avery investigated and found, not a log, but the great rock salt deposit that has made Louisiana famous throughout the country. The discovery did not come altogether as a surprise, as Thomassy had predicted that a great rock salt deposit would one day be discovered in each of the five Gulf islands, and perhaps in other portions of the state. Since the close of the war, rock salt has been an important contributing factor in the mineral wealth of the state.—National Magazine.

The Wagon Wheel Paradox.

A very interesting paradox is the one concerning an ordinary wagon wheel which is solid and rigid, yet, when fastened on its axle on a wagon, when the wagon moves part of the circumference of the wheel which is in contact with the ground is for an instant at absolute rest, while the point directly perpendicular to it is flying along at a high rate of speed. The two points horizontal with the center of the wheel are traveling pretty fast, but only half as fast as the topmost point, and as the up going horizontal point increases in speed the down going one slows up until it is at rest for a moment when in contact with the ground. Yet the wheel is one solid piece and there are only two points going at the same rate of speed at the same time. Yet if the wheel is taken off the axle and rolled down an incline every point of the circumference moves at the same rate of speed.

He's Still Running.

A gentleman in a Manchester restaurant the other day thought he would have a joke with the waiter and asked him if he had ever seen a sausage roll.

"Say," said the waiter, "I have not only seen a sausage roll, but I have seen a biscuit box, a table spoon, a chimney sweep, a chain link, a nose gay, a camera slide, a garden fence, a sword fish, a wall flower." But when he got to a "fire escape," the gentleman thought it was high time for him to escape too.

As he went the waiter went with him, saying, "A trap turn, a cake walk, a mountain climb, a sky lark, a honey comb, a half crown"—

But by this time the gentleman joker was half way down the street in a dazed condition.—London Ideas.

Marriage.

"Don't sneer at the Chinese literati and the ancient Chinese literature."

The speaker was the Chinese consul general in San Francisco. He continued:

"Our ancient Chinese literature is wise. Take, for example, one of its epigrams on marriage. Could anything be wiser than this:

"'Marriage is like a besieged city—those without all want to get in, and those within all want to get out.'"

A Mean Insinuation.

It was at one of the famous "frolics" given by the Lambs. Mr. Charles Frohman had made an extremely neat and appropriate speech. There was loud applause at its finish, and then, "Author, author!" cried Mr. Augustus Thomas, standing up on his chair.

"I should say he is! He doesn't seem to care what his wife and children have to go without."—Detroit Free Press.

Bedouin's Three Treasures.

There are always three things uppermost in the Bedouin's mind—his gun, his horse and his wives. The most modern arms of precision have replaced the primitive spear which, until a few years ago, was the usual weapon. The Bedouin is quick to realize the efficiency of modern weapons and soon becomes an expert marksman. So much has the spear fallen out of favor that the bearer of one would be ridiculed in his own camp. Such pride has the Bedouin in his weapons that even in his leisure hours he sits fully armed, examining and cleaning each piece in turn, making himself accustomed to carrying their weight. No youth considers himself a man until he has fully equipped himself. A sword is much esteemed, but generally only as an heirloom and as giving distinction to the bearer. There are to be found many excellent blades among the sheiks, some with a history of hundreds of years, having been handed down from father to son.—Wide World Magazine.

Animals Attack the Lungs.

Watch any flesh eating animal when it is attacking its prey or watch two animals having a fight to the death. You will notice one remarkable fact, and that is that they strike for the lungs. Most people, of course, are well aware where their own lungs are, but they haven't the slightest idea about any other lungs. Animals instinctively know, however, the position of the lungs of almost every other animal. When a tiger or a lion attacks a man it does its best to get just below the shoulder blades. If it strikes without warning you will always find that its powerful paws have torn right through to the lungs. A cat has just the same instinct. It goes for the lungs—the vital spot—just the same as its bigger brothers. Watch it stalk a sparrow and you will see how cleverly it maneuvers so as to get behind the unfortunate bird and pounce on its back, where the lungs are.—London Graphic.

Shooting the Seal.

Seals are caught in a variety of ways, but they are very shy creatures and the greatest caution must be exercised in approaching them. Even when they have been struck by harpoon or rifle bullet the blow must be fatal and death instantaneous, or the animal will drop into its hole in the ice and be seen no more. Indeed, the fact that a seal seldom moves far from its hole adds considerably to the hunter's difficulties. The plan usually adopted by Eskimo hunters is to build up a kind of tent sledge. The sides and front are masked with bearskin, the top with the pelt of a hare. The native hides within this novel tent and inch by inch propels himself over the ice till he is near his quarry. The rifle with which he slays his seal is brought into use through a loophole in the sledge covering.

Our Unknown World.

Despite the marvelous advance of exploration in various parts of the globe, an estimate as submitted by a member of the Royal Geographical society in London shows that no less than 20,000,000 square miles of the earth's surface yet remain unexplored. The largest unexplored area is said to be that in Africa—6,500,000 miles—but even North America contains 1,500,000 square miles of virgin territory. It is surprising to learn that there are three times as much land awaiting the foot of the pioneer in North America as in South America.—Harper's.

Real Hard Luck.

"Speaking of hard luck," remarked an official, "I had some hard luck once during my early days."

"Elucidate," said another official.

"I had just invested my last $5 in a meal ticket."

"Yes, yes!"

"As I started down the street a gust of wind tore the ticket from my hand. A lumberjack was passing, wearing heavy, hobnailed boots."

"Yes; go on."

"And he stepped on my ticket and punched out $4.85."—Kansas City Journal.

To Save Money.

Mark Twain's rules for saving money when one was tempted to part with some of his treasure were simple. Here they are:

To save half when you are fired by an eager impulse to contribute to a charity, wait and count forty. To save three-quarters count sixty. To save it all count sixty-five.

Love.

Love is the most powerful of spells. Every other species of sorcery must yield to it. There is but one power against which it is helpless. What is that? It is not fire; it is not water; it is not air; it is not the earth with all its metals. It is time.—Heine.

What It Is.

"Well, Johnnie, I hear you have another baby at your house."

"Yep."

"What is it?"

"The nurse says it's a girl, but pa seems to think it's hard luck."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Mistake.

Pumpe—Why did Mrs. Armstrong snub you just now? Chumpe—I put my foot in it, introducing her to Vera Fatheade. Pumpe—How did you slip up? Chumpe—Presented her as Mrs. Armstrong, nee Weak.—Town Topics.

Demonstrated Efficiency.

"So you think your wife is qualified to help reform politics?"

"Well," replied Mr. Meekton thoughtfully, "she has made a success of home rule all right."—Washington Star.

How to Keep Roses Fresh.

Proper care of cut flowers will double their lease of life. Even hothouse roses, usually the shortest lived of blossoms, can be made to retain their beauty and fragrance for two weeks if one will take the trouble to boil the stems. To do this set a pan of hot water on the stove and when the water begins to boil place the stems of the flowers in the water to the depth of one inch. Hold the flowers carefully to prevent their touching the sides or bottom of the pan. Allow them to boil fifteen or twenty minutes. Remove the flowers and clip off the portions of the stems that were in the water. They are then ready to be arranged in the vase or bowl. Many persons have poor success in keeping cut flowers because they do not put fresh water into flower vases every day. The stems of the flowers should be clipped every day to enable them to take up more water. Never leave cut flowers in a warm room overnight. Set them in a cool place.—Kansas Industrialist.

Mecca's Polluted Well.

A scientific analysis has been made of the Zem-Zem water from the sacred well at Mecca, which, according to the Arabs, is the well that the angel showed to Hagar and whose water saved the life of Ishmael. After reading the results of the analysis one cannot wonder that pilgrims who drink the water frequently are attacked by cholera. The specimen examined contained sixty-nine grains of chlorine to the gallon. Water which contains so little as nine grains of chlorine to the gallon is ordinarily regarded as scarcely fit for human consumption. Moreover, in the case of the Zem-Zem well it is believed the chlorine originates from the custom of pouring the water over the pilgrims and allowing it to run back into the well. The sacred water was found to possess an extraordinary degree of "hardness," three times as great as that of average water. It also held twenty times as much ammonia compounds as drinking water should contain.

A Touch of Human Nature.

The doors which open from the sidewalk into the lobby of a big building are heavy ones and are very hard to open. Yesterday a little hunchback stepped out of an elevator on the first floor, followed by a great big man. The hunchback reached the doors first and threw himself against one. Although he pushed with all his might, he couldn't open it. Chagrined, he stepped back, and the big man stepped up. Noticing the look of humiliation on the face of the little fellow, the big man said:

"I've got a sore wrist. Come on; let's see if we both can't open it."

The hunchback and the big man both pushed on the door, and of course it opened. The two went out smiling.

The big man had no sore wrist at all. Two or three people looking on felt like cheering for him.—New York Telegraph.

How to Walk.

There is no virtue in a dawdling saunter. The slow and languid dragging of one foot after the other which some people call walking would tire an athlete. It utterly exhausts a weak person, and that is the reason why many delicate persons think they cannot walk. To derive any benefit from the exercise it is necessary to walk with a light, elastic step which swings the weight of the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt and which produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins.

Domestic Strategy.

"I suppose you try to make your home so attractive to your husband that he will wish to spend all his spare moments in it."

"Yes. I keep matches and cigars where he may always find them handy; there isn't a tidy or a sofa pillow or anything of that kind in his room, and I allow him to have portraits of his father and mother hung in places that are just as good as those which are devoted to the pictures of my own parents."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Sterling Merit.

"I bought my wife a fine arrangement for long motor rides."

"What is it?"

"A sort of trap to wear over the mouth called a dust protector."

"Does it work?"

"I don't know about the dust part of it, but it keeps her from talking!"

No Need.

Priscilla—Jack is the oddest fellow! He took me driving yesterday, and when we were seven miles from home he said if I wouldn't promise to marry him he'd make me get out and walk back. Penelope—Did you walk back? Priscilla—No, indeed, but the horse did!—London Telegraph.

Two Factors.

Willis—I've got to cut out this high life while my wife is away. Gillis—What's the trouble now? Willis—The pace and the neighbors are beginning to tell.—Puck.

An Extremist.

Hicks—Mathers is one of those simplified spelling cranks, isn't he? Wicks—I should say so! He spells wife "yf."—Boston Transcript.

Household Talk.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF LOS ANGELES.

The City of Glendale, a municipal corporation, Plaintiff, vs. John Roman, et al, Defendants. Notice.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons owning or having an interest in any property included within the assessment district described in Ordinance No. 144 of the City of Glendale, State of California, approved the 11th day of September, 1911, and entitled "An Ordinance Declaring the Intention of the Board of Trustees of the City of Glendale to Order the Laying Out, Opening and Widening of Brand Boulevard Between the South Line of Sixth Street and the Southerly Line of Grider and Hamilton Lomita Park in the said City of Glendale." That the report of the referees in the above entitled action was filed in the office of the County Clerk of Los Angeles County, and ex-officio clerk of said Superior Court on the 27th day of March, 1912, and that thereafter, to-wit, on the 28th day of March, 1912, said Court, in Department 5 thereof duly and regularly appointed the 22nd day of April, 1912, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., in said Department, as the time for hearing the said report.

Each and every person owning or having an interest in said property included in said assessment district is hereby required to intervene in said action and file in the office of the said Court, within the time required by law, his exceptions in writing to said report, if any he has, specifying the grounds upon which such exceptions are based.

Said assessment district above referred to includes that piece or parcel of land situate in the city of Glendale, county of Los Angeles, state of California, more particularly described as follows:

Commencing at a point on the Easterly line of Central Avenue, where said East line is intersected by the South city boundary line of the city of Glendale; thence Northerly along the East line of said, Central Avenue to the South line of Fourth Street; thence Easterly along the South line of said Fourth Street to the Northeast corner of Lot four (4), block fifty-nine (59) of the town of Glendale as per map recorded in book 21, page 96, of Miscellaneous Records of Los Angeles County, California; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Southeast corner of lot twenty-two (22) block sixty (60) of aforesaid town of Glendale; thence Southerly to the Northeast corner of lot nine (9) of Grider and Hamilton's Lomita Park, as per map recorded in book 6, page 165 of Maps, Records of aforesaid Los Angeles County; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Southeast corner of lot sixty (60) of said Grider and Hamilton's Lomita Park; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Northeast corner of lot one hundred two (102) of said Grider and Hamilton's Lomita Park; thence Southerly in a direct line to the Southeast corner of lot one hundred fifty-two (152) of said Grider and Hamilton's Lomita Park; thence Southerly to the Northeast corner of lot three (3) of tract No. 254, as per map recorded in book 14, page 4, of Maps, Records of aforesaid Los Angeles County; thence Southerly along the Easterly line of said lot three (3) of said tract No. 254, to the Southeast corner thereof; thence Southerly along the Easterly lines of Lots twenty-two (22) to twenty-eight (28) inclusive, of Randolph's Tract, as per map recorded in book 12, page 104, of Maps, Records of aforementioned Los Angeles County, to the Southeast corner of said lot twenty-eight (28); thence Southerly to the Northeast corner of lot 9 of Borthick's Tract, as per map recorded in book 58, page 154, of Maps, Records of aforesaid Los Angeles County, California; thence Southerly along the Easterly lines of lots nine (9) and fifteen (15) of said Borthick's Tract to an intersection with the South boundary line of the city of Glendale; thence Westerly following said South boundary line of said city of Glendale to the Easterly line of Central Avenue, the point of beginning. Excepting therefrom any portion of any public street or alley which may be included within the above described assessment district.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the County of Los Angeles, this 28th day of March, 1912.

[Seal]

H. J. LELANDE, County Clerk.

CONSTABLE'S SALE.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Justice Court of Pasadena Township, County of Los Angeles, State of California, Robert W. McDonald, Justice of the Peace, dated the 8th day of March, 1912, in a certain action wherein McH. Pierce as plaintiff received judgment against E. L. Cushman and Charlotte Cushman, his wife, as defendants, for the sum of One Hundred Thirty-one and 80-100 Dollars ($131.80), lawful money of the United States, besides costs and interest, etc., on the 23rd day of January, 1912, I have levied upon all the right, title, claim and interest of said defendants, E. L. Cushman and Charlotte Cushman, his wife, of, in and to the following described real estate situated in the City of Glendale, County of Los Angeles, State of California, and bounded and described as follows:

Lot Seven (7) in the Fairview Tract in the Rancho San Rafael, as per map recorded in Book 11, page 15 of Maps, in the office of the County Recorder of Los Angeles County. This property stands of record in the name of Charlotte Cushman.

Notice is hereby given that I will, on Monday, the 29th day of April, A. D. 1912, at 11 o'clock a. m. of that day, in front of the City Hall of Glendale, in the County of Los Angeles, at the front entrance, sell at public auction, for cash, lawful money of the United States, all the right, title, claim and interest of said defendants, E. L. Cushman and Charlotte Cushman, his wife, of, in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to raise sufficient money to satisfy said judgment, with interest and costs, etc., to the highest and best bidder.

Dated at Pasadena, the 2nd day of April, A. D. 1912.

TROPICO

H. Clay Seaman will start tomorrow morning for Washington to remain there several weeks. The trip is being made on business.

Miss Hazel Dunlap of Pasadena, was the guest this week of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Weston, at their home on Weston avenue.

Mrs. G. H. Hodgson and daughter, Miss Gladys, of Los Angeles, were guests Thursday of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. M. Retts of Palmer avenue.

At the morning service last Sunday morning at the Methodist church the members of the congregation donated $150 for the several outside branches of the church.

Miss Mary Logan entertained a number of her little friends at an afternoon party Tuesday. The games and dainty refreshments were much enjoyed by the twenty-five young people present.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Seaman report a delightful time at the dance given by the Oriental Lodge of the Eastern Star of Los Angeles, the affair being held in the Golburg hall. Only a few residents of this valley were invited to the affair.

At the Tropico Methodist church next Sunday the Easter anthems which were rendered at last Sunday morning's service will be repeated by request. Regular services will be held at this church both morning and evening next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. DeFratas of Edendale are passing some time with Mrs. DeFratas' parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Reynolds of Central avenue. It is the intention of Mr. and Mrs. De Fratas to purchase property in Tropico and to reside here permanently.

Miss Zada Bartle, formerly a resident of this place, but who for the past several months has been residing in San Diego, has returned and will pass some time with Miss Nina Claver on East First street. Miss Bartle is studying voice culture in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Charles Munroe of Chicago, who for the past several weeks has been visiting relatives in Southern California, having passed much time with Mr. and Mrs. William Harvey, jr., of Tropico avenue, returned to her eastern home this week.

John Kirkham and son Gerald made a flying trip to Tropico this week. Upon their return to within a few miles of Riverside, where they are living, they took with them a load of furniture, which they will use in furnishing the home in which they are living.

The following is the list of officers elected by the members of the Presbyterian church to service for the following year: President, H. Edgar Fry; vice president, James Rich; secretary H. L. Moody; treasurer, Edgar S. Ayers; building secretary, B. W. Richardson.

In commemoration of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Fannie Marple, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Marple entertained at their little home on east Cypress street, Tuesday evening with a 6 o'clock dinner. A three-course luncheon was served and the evening was passed in conversation.

The Philathia class of the Presbyterian Sunday school of this place will give an entertainment and social in the pariors of the church next Thursday evening. The program will be rendered by home talent and promises to be unusually good. During the evening games will be played and refreshments will be served.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Logan entertained a number of friends at their home, corner Cypress avenue and Central, Tuesday evening. Games and music were enjoyed during the evening and refreshments were served. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stevenson, Charles McKinney, Fred Raffenburg, Dwight Stevenson, Hall McNutt and Harry Marple; Misses Lynn and Gene McNutt, Catherine Hobbs, Dorothy Hobbs and Mary Logan.

The fountain at Nesom's Drug Store is working overtime. Everybody wants one of those Rexall "Fuzzy Wuzzys." One calls for another.

RECIPROCITY DAY IN TROPICO.

The Thursday Afternoon Club has issued sixty invitations for a reciprocity luncheon to be held in the Tropico K. of P. hall on April 18th. Luncheon will be served at noon under the auspices of Mrs. H. H. Davenport and Mrs. J. W. Webster. During the afternoon a highly interesting program will be given under the supervision of Dr. Jessie Russell, Mrs. W. G. Wattles, Mrs. Edward Lynch and Mrs. E. F. Tholen. The address will be made by Mrs. W. H. Housh of Los Angeles, and vocal numbers rendered by Mrs. Stella May Orth, accompanied by Miss Katherine Hobbs. The various club presidents will be called upon for a few words. An unusually interesting and pleasant day is anticipated.

PARKER & STERNBERG.

TROPICO CARRIERS BEGIN WORK.

Postoffice Regulations.

Beginning Monday, April 8, the mail carrier left the Tropico postoffice, delivering to those who have been receiving mail through the Glendale office within the city limits of Tropico, and the following additional territory has been added:

El Bonito avenue.
Cerritos avenue.
Mira Loma ovenue.
Gardena avenue.

All mail should be addressed to Tropico, with your correct street number. This you can get by calling at City Clerk's office in City Hall.

This territory has two deliveries each day. The balance of the territory within the city limits of Tropico will be added to the free delivery as rapidly as possible.

At the present time we are receiving six mails and dispatching six mails each day.

WEALTH AND BEAUTY JOIN HANDS IN SAN JACINTO

You have seen valleys, and heard of valleys, but unless you have seen our beautiful San Jacinto Valley you can have but little conception what a real valley is like. It is more than a "level strip of land between hills." It is eighteen thousand acres level as a floor, surrounded by beautiful mountains, and every acre under cultivation, beautiful ranches and orchards of every kind, fine alfalfa farms, great potato fields, in fact most everything that will grow in any country can be grown here to better advantage.

All we want now is a few more good, neighborly settlers to join us in an expansion that we are proud to be able to make, and doubly proud to know that the highest priced acre offered in the valley at this time would still be a bargain at twice the price asked. Heretofore we have had population enough, because of the scarcity of water, but conditions have changed since the great water discovery made recently. We now have more water than we have land, and not quite as many settlers as either, so come right along and bring your friends. You can't beat it for climate, water, fertility, beauty, or a place to accumulate a snug little fortune quick.

We have people with us who have traveled all over the world, and lived in this State for years, and are in a position to judge of the true condition as compared with other localities—they are here to stay. Now is the time to get in right. All we ask is a look. Every one should see the best there is to be had in any line before they decide. It aids the judgment in making comparison, we know if you will become interested enough to make comparison that the jig is up. When this is done, it only remains for us to co-operate with you and you with us in making San Jacinto Valley the most desirable home place on earth. Come over and see us, it won't cost you a cent after you get here, as we have a committee appointed with machines to show everybody around absolutely free. These machines are at your service every day in the week.

Look for another notice in this paper next issue. Send postal for photographs and further particulars. San Jacinto Board of Trade, San Jacinto, Cal.

THE CHICAGO SPRING POET.

(He Writeth Under Difficulties.)

Poet: "Hail, gentle Spring! We yield to thy control.
Old Winter's piercing blasts at last have fled."
Wife: "Husband, I'm freezing, and we're out of coal;
And with a cold John Henry's almost dead."

He: "The murmuring streamlet of its joy doth tell;
Now balmy zephyrs for past chills atone."
She: "Oh, Husband, hear Josiah's awful yell!
And, mercy on me, answer that old phone!"

He: "At gentle waving of thy magic wand,
Up springeth daisy and the daffiodil."
She: "The baby cries today to beat the band;
I'm sure she has a fever, or a chill."

He: "The birds are trilling forth their songs of love.
List to their concert held in yonder tree."
She: "Oh, dear! Coming from school Nell lost a glove,
And James fell on the ice and skinned his knee."

He: "And now the frisky lambkins skip and play
In meadows decked with flowers and pastures green.
Oh, joy! the springtime hours to while away,
The soul led captive by the lovely scene."

She: "Husband, the fire is getting very low.
(Kechew! Kechew!) There comes more cold, I guess.
To California let us quickly go—
Your springtime songs would fit Los Angeles—
And then forthwith we'll strike the shortest trail,
Nor will we rest until we reach Glendale."

April 1, 1912. —SAMUEL PARKER.

Mail for Glendale leaves this office at 8:20 a. m. and 2:20 p. m.

At the present time there is a little confusion caused by some having their mail addressed to Glendale and the old numbers.

With the co-operation of the public and a little patience we will give you the best mail facilities possible.

ELECTIONS AT TROPICO.

Two hundred and twenty-two votes were cast at the election for grammar school trustees at this city last Friday, while for the high school trustee 229 votes were tallied. In the fight for grammar school trustees Clyde R. Carmack, who was the only candidate whose name was printed on the ticket, received 144 votes, to 78 votes cast for Miss Rose V. Winterburn, who was running for high school trustee, but for whom the people voted for grammar trustee. In the fight for high school trustee Miss Winterburn received 127 votes to 102 polled for Griswold at this place. Miss Winterburn was not given a place on the board because the vote received by her in other districts was exceedingly small.

At the regular municipal election the following was the vote for the city trustees: C. A. Bancroft, 361; John Hobbs, 355; Daniel Webster, 361; Andrew O. Conrad, 298; Irving H. Oliver 296. It will be notihed that both of the East Side candidates, those living on the Glendale avenue side of town were apparently "cut" by a large number of voters from the West Side. The eastsiters are indignant at the support afforded their candidates at this election, and it is this vote on the part of the westsiders has stirred up anew the strong sectional feeling which has existed between the two sides of town during the past year or so. In addition to the vote for these regular candidates, Alex Frankland was given one vote; Frank H. Davis, two votes; W. C. Wattles, one vote; C. R. Carmack, two votes.

The vote for city clerk resulted in Lou A. Gregory, 136; S. M. Street, 245. For city treasurer, Stillman E. Brown, 216; W. G. Black, 169.

The following propositions were voted on:

"Shall each member of the board of trustees of the city of Tropico receive as compensation for his services as such member the sum of three ($3) dollars for each meeting of the board actually attended by such member, not exceeding one meeting in each week?" Yes, 179; no, 164.

"Shall the ordinance entitled, 'An ordinance prohibiting billiard halls, pool rooms, and places where billiard and pool tables are kept for hire or public use in the city of Tropico, and repealing section 11 of Ordinance No 6, of said city providing for licensing billiard halls and pool rooms' be adopted?" No. 235; yes, 128.

Christopher's Ice Cream packed and delivered at Los Angeles prices at Nesom's Drug Store.

WEST GLENDALE

Mr. Taylor and family of Los Angeles have moved into the home formerly owned by Mr. W. T. Parker, 1504 Ivy street.

Mrs. E. O. Williams is rapidly recovering from her recent injuries and expects to leave for her home in Utica about May 1st.

A fine new two-story house is being erected on the corner of Vine and Central avenue, which will add to the many fine homes that grace this part of town.

Mr. J. J. Schaemp is at the Burbank hospital, where he underwent an operation on Wednesday. Mrs. Schremp is still confined to the hospital, and is not expected home for some time.

Elections have come and gone and we hope everybody is just as good friends as they were before and trust that the newly-elected and the re-elected will fulfill the duties of their offices to the satisfaction of the public.

Mr. Geo. F. Heidet, who expected to move into his new home, 1330 West Seventh street, this week, is confined to his apartments at the Hollenbeck hotel, with a bad attack of rheumatism and will not be able to move until later.

There is quite an epidemic of whooping cough in the West Glendale school, some twenty odd pupils of the first grade are in retirement at the present time and a few in the other grades are in the same predicament. But we hope to have a better report next week.

Easter exercises were held at the West Glendale M. E. church on Sunday at the Sunday school hour. A good program was rendered by the children and the church was beautifully decorated with calla lilies and other flowers and ferns. A large number were in attendance.

A meeting of the "Queen Esthers" was held at the West Glendale church on Saturday last, at which time the officers of this little band of workers were elected, and interesting matters talked over. Their teacher, Miss Clara Midcalf, was presented with a fine birthday cake made by one of the young misses, and which was shared by all.

MONTHLY BULLETIN OF THE CALIFORNIA DEVELOPMENT BOARD, MARCH 1912.

"At the beginning of the month the outlook was discouraging, owing to the prolonged dry period. In general the rainfall amounted to 30 per cent of that of a normal year, and in some places less. About March 5th the dry period was broken by general and generous rains. The rains of the first week were followed by others during the second decade and by a few showers later. The snow in the mountains which had been reduced to a minimum, was reinforced by moderately heavy falls. As the run-off has been light the prospect for a supply of water during the coming summer months while not of the best, is still much better than was anticipated.

"There were some heavy frosts at the beginning of the month and some of the fruit blossoms, especially almonds, suffered, but otherwise the month has been most favorable for crops. Regarding the damage from frost, it may not be out of place to call attention to the great increase in the use of heaters and protective devices, which means that losses heretofore regarded as beyond control will very soon be minimized.

"Speaking of the state generally, the south has had 60 per cent of a normal rainfall, the Great Valley about 50 per cent, the Bay section about 55 per cent and the north coast counties about 75 per cent. There has, however, been no waste, and therefore the water will count for more than the figures indicate at first glance."

Sunset 266 — Cor. Fourth Street and Glendale Avenue

The annual meeting of the California Development Board resulted in the re-election of the officers of the past year.

April 30th is Raisin Day in California—every one is expected to eat raisins on that day.

The agricultural exhibit in the Ferry building has been augmented by displays from Lassen and El Dorado counties.

Philander C. Knox will be the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the board at the Palace Hotel May 7th.

The productions of California industries were valued at more than one billion dollars for 1911.

Four hundred acres have been planted to dates in Imperial county.

Palo Verde will add a large area of Imperial to the cotton acreage.

Rains improved the pasturage, and range stock is in good condition.

Wild geese in large numbers are giving farmers much trouble.

The outlook for mining has much improved with the rains.

The oil industry is attracting large capital.

Horticultural inspectors are active in preventing introduction of pests.

Citrus shipments to 18th inst. were 14,412 carloads, 5056 less than those to March 20, 1911.

Sacramento, April 8.—State Printer Friend W. Richardson announced today that he had appointed Frank J. Smith to the position of general foreman of the state printing office. Smith is present foreman of the ad department of the San Francisco Examiner and is recognized as one of the best systematizers and executives in the printing business. He has no political pull whatever and receives his appointment solely as a matter of merit.

Even operating the state office with much of the old force Richardson has been able to reduce the cost of manufacturing school books over 30 per cent, and now with a complete reorganization he expects to make a still better showing. Other changes are expected in the state printing office.

In speaking of the appointment today, State Printer Richardson said: "In Frank J. Smith I believe I have secured one of the most competent men in the state. He is highly recommended by those for whom he has worked. He will take charge of the plant on the 15th of this month and then the reorganization of the state plant will be completed. I have made a number of changes to increase the efficiency of the office, and believe with the assistance of Frank J. Smith I can make the state office as efficient as any private plant. He is a man of rare ability in handling men. There were a number of good men under consideration, but I believe time will prove that I have chosen wisely in selecting Frank J. Smith."

"MADAME CHERRY," AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The second week of the summer engagement of the Armstrong Follies company will begin at the Grand Opera house Sunday afternoon when the newest of Ed Armstrong's burlettas, "Madame Cherry," will be the offering. The initial week proved beyond all question of doubt hat the public wants just such a high-class, laughable attraction as that which the Armstrong company offered in "A Big Night," for the attendance was of record-breaking proportions. It will be the policy of the new managers of the Grand to offer a new burletta every week regardless of how great is the attendance during any one week.

"Madame Cherry" is a speedy show for it is one and a half hours of rapid fire, music and comedy. The story is really a burlesque of "Madame Cherry" which funny though it was, is made funnier still by the deft pen of Ed Armstrong. He has written one brand new song, "When You're Broke," which he says will be the hit if there ever was such a thing registered anywhere. Ethel Davis will introduce a new song, "Bring Back My Loving Man," and should prove a big attraction, for Miss Davis is one of the few prima donnas who seems to get better and better each time she appears. Clara Howard will also have a special song, "The Rag Time Ball," and Bert Vincent, the big, good-natured fun maker will render "I Want a Girl" in his inimitable manner. Chorus girl contests will be held each Friday night in the future. The Baby Dolls revel in those evenings and everyone is out to beat her rival. Several new baby dolls have been added to the list during the past week, so there will be something worth while seeing Friday night. The Armstrong company is one of the strongest musical organizations ever presented in Los Angeles and it is certain to enjoy great popularity. Two shows will be given every night, and matinees as usual daily, except Mondays and Fridays.

WORTH WHILE CLUB.

The girls of the Worth While Club were delightfully entertained Monday evening, April 8, by Mrs. Rev. Edmonds, at the Manse on Cedar street. An interesting program on Burns had been arranged by the leader, Miss Monica Smith, but on account of the rainy evening one or two who were to take part were unable to be present. The program however was very enjoyable and profitable. Several Scotch songs were sung and a few extracts from Burns were read. Mrs. Edmonds then served dainty refreshments in keeping with the Easter time, after which all departed voting Mrs. Edmonds a delightful hostess.

MARRIED.

Married at the home of the bride's parents in Eagle Rock, April 9, at four o'clock p. m., Miss May Diddock to Mr. John A. Marvel of Glendale. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. C. R. Norton in the presence of the members of the home and the sister of the groom, Mrs. Chester Jones. A bountiful dinner was served to which all did adequate justice. Johnnie, as usually called, was at his very best and exceedingly happy. The bride is a beautiful character, esteemed and loved by all who know her. They will be at home to their friends after April 16th on Third street.

All join in wishing them happiness and real success.

HIGH SCHOOL.

Whittier is coming next Saturday to get its strike at the Glendale nine.

The showing made by our team against Pasadena last Saturday was very poor, but the absence of three of the best players explains the matter very clearly.

Last Wednesday evening the eleventh year German class were entertained at the home of Miss Evelyn Kent. The evening was spent in playing German games and singing German songs. Owing to the vacation week not all the class were able to be present.

On Saturday last Glendale defeated the University of Southern California Preparatory team in tennis with a score of 11 to 9.

Miss Hawk spent the week's vacation at Berkeley, visiting while there the schools at Berkeley and the Mills college.

Preparations are under way for the third annual oratorical contest which will be held in the high school auditorium Friday evening, April 20.

Monday, April 8, at 4 o'clock, the first class try-out for the oratorical contest was held by the Junior class in the auditorium. Six young ladies were entered and all had good orations. The decisions of the judges was in favor of Miss Alma Turner who also represented the class in the interclass contest of last year. Not all of the class representatives are chosen.

ENTERTAINED.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blay of 525 South Jackson street entertained a number of former Indiana friends at a sumptuous Easter dinner. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Will Mull and son Charles, Mr. and Mrs. John Baker and son Willard, Mrs. Grace Lemaux and sons Edward and George, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hathaway and two daughters, Miss Jessamine and Miss Lilliard, all of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Will Dickerson and family, Masters Otto, Clyde and Charles, and Miss Mary Catherine, and Mr. J. Elgie of Busch of Glendale.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church meets at 2:30 Tuesday afternoon. Subject, "India and Christiao Citizenship."
